NEW 'MYSTERY' WEAPON USED BY NAZI FORCES

Germans Claim 'Machine' Able To Destroy Parts Of Stalin Line

RUSSIANS HOLDING FAST

Reich's Losses Enormous, Attackers Unable To Cross Dnieper

By International News Service
The now-familiar phrase "mystery weapon" entered the mechanized Russo-German war today.

An official military announcement from Berlin asserted that some new type of "engine" utilized by German shock troops had been brought into play along the Stalin Line to widen breaches made earlier in Russia's fortified wall.

While the Nazis claimed destruction of an entire series of the most modern and strongest Russian concrete bunkers by use of this undescribed weapon, the Soviet high command staunchly insisted that the line was standing firm.

Actually, a communique issued by the Soviet Information Bureau said, all German attempts to crack the Russian defenses and force the Dnieper River "were frustrated with heavy losses to the enemy." Two German infantry battalions and 35 heavy Nazi tanks were "destroyed," the Russian high command said, and many prisoners were taken.

Heavy Blows Traded

While this war on men, tanks and words continued, Britain and Germany exchanged heavy aerial blows. The vital English channel port of Southampton, spared in recent weeks, was heavily attacked by the Luftwaffe while Royal Air Force planes again lashed out at Nazi-occupied France and Germany.

With the United States Navy in occupation of Iceland, the possible future role of American armed forces in the war was highlighted in an interview given by General Sir Claude Auchinleck, new British commander-in-chief in the middle east.

Only with the air of an American Expeditionary Force, he said, can Adolf Hitler be defeated—finally and totally—and on his own soil. London apparently concurred in Auchinleck's astonishing assertion.

18 MEN WILL BE CALLED TO ARMY AFTER JULY 31

Selective Service officials Tuesday received an advance notice from state headquarters for 18 men for the period beginning July 31. The call is the largest the local board has received since March 18, when 18 others were sent into service.

Local draft officials estimate the call will take all class 1-A men up to and perhaps through Order Number 700.

None of the new registrants, the 21-year-olds who registered on July 1, is expected to be included in the July 31 group, since national headquarters has announced that the national lottery will not be held until the last of the month and local order numbers are not expected to be assigned in time for the call.

The advance notice is yet to be confirmed by an official call.

ICELAND OCCUPATION BRINGS WAR NEAR

By Captain John H. Craig
U. S. Marine Corps, Retired
Occupation of Iceland by American marine and naval forces unquestionably brings war a long step nearer to the United States. It may be a strange sort of war, especially in its beginning. It is easy to imagine circumstances under which each side will begin to shoot, but strategic and political considerations will render both nations reluctant to be the first to declare war.

History may repeat itself. Under somewhat similar circumstances United States and French naval forces started a shooting war in 1798. Ships were captured, other ships sunk by both belligerents. U. S. marines even landed on Santo Domingo, then a Spanish colony, to cut out a French warship. But although hostilities lasted two years, neither side ever got around to declaring war.

The occupation of Iceland as a base is a step that every person with military or naval training must approve. A nation can never have too many outlying bases to serve as outposts for its defense. Squadrons of ships and planes must have land establishments from which to operate. The farther the United States can push these defensive outposts from its own shores, the more notice it will have of the approach of an enemy and the deeper will be the defensive air and naval bases through which hostile ships and planes will have to pass.

By the standards of Admiral Mahan, classic authority on naval war, Iceland is far from being an ideal base. It is huge, glacier-ridden, barren and does not produce food for its own people, let alone enough to feed a garrison such as its size would render necessary. Nor has it any coal, iron or manufacturing facilities. For these reasons, Iceland—Greenland even more so—will never prove satisfactory sites for first class bases, either for attack or defense.

Principal value of Iceland in the present situation is in meeting the threats enumerated by the President against all shipping in the North Atlantic and against the steady flow of munitions to Britain. As a naval and air base in meeting Germany's present submarine-air-surface blockade Iceland is just what the doctor ordered.

Under conditions existing at present there is little doubt that the United States can render the island impregnable to any possible Axis attack, and can keep the surrounding seas and skies reasonably free from submarines and bombing planes.

But this could not be done without shooting, and whether American gunners will be ordered to fire on ships and planes in the Iceland zone is a question on which there is as yet no information.

Tremendous aid could be extended to Britain in her vital battle of the Atlantic if the United States were to undertake to police all of the waters of the Atlantic Ocean between the American coastline and Iceland, and assure the safety of convoys as far as Reykjavik, the island capital. This is nearly three-quarters of the distance from New York to Liverpool.

ICELAND ACTION CITED AS DEFY TO AXIS POWER

Official Washington Tense After Announcement That Navy Has Taken Area

OTHER BASES GUARDED

Italy Says President Has Violated Promise To Remain In West

BERLIN, July 8—The Wilhelmstrasse awaited instructions from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today before commenting on American occupation of Iceland.

WASHINGTON, July 8—Official Washington waited somewhat tensely today for Chancellor Hitler's next move, now that President Roosevelt actually has planted the Stars and Stripes within the European war zone, directly challenged Germany, and ordered the American navy to take "all necessary steps" to free both the North and South Atlantic of further "hostile activities."

Dramatic occupation of Iceland by the Navy, coupled with dispatch of "substantial forces" to the lately U. S. acquired British bases of Trinidad and British Guiana, in the main met with congressional approval.

Senate non-interventionists led by Wheeler (D) Mont., Nye (R) N. D. and Johnson (R) Calif., however, predict that the President's action will bring the United States into World War II either by the front door or the back.

Late this afternoon, Mr. Roosevelt is due to hold his customary Tuesday press conference. Prior to that time, the White House would say only that his surprise message to Congress "speaks for itself."

Presidential subordinates are leaving it up to the "boss" himself to say whether or not the June 30 plea of Secretary of the Navy Knox that "the time for the Navy to clear the Atlantic of the German menace is now" had been answered.

Idea Not New One
Close examination of the July 1 exchange between President Roosevelt and Icelandic Prime Minister Hermann Jonasson discloses that Washington and London had been debating the idea of a United States protectorate over Iceland since before June 24. This exchange further reveals that the British wanted to move out of Iceland because their forces are required elsewhere.

Italians Irked

ROME, July 8—An official Italian statement today criticized American naval occupation of Iceland as a "violation of President Roosevelt's promises to remain within the limits of measures short of war and to refrain from sending troops outside the Western Hemisphere."

Real purpose of the American occupation, a foreign office spokesman said, is to create a "vast sea zone for delivery of supplies to England."

"This constitutes outright American intervention in European waters," the spokesman said.

New 'Gibraltar'

WASHINGTON, July 8—Military quarters disclosed today that United States plans call for development of Iceland into the "Gibraltar of the North Atlantic." Butressing America's toe-hold in Greenland, President Roosevelt's further step toward the British Isles will aid the Atlantic neutrality patrol in protecting lease-lend shipping to the furthestmost longitudes of the Western Hemisphere.

REP. BOLLES (R) OF WISCONSIN DIES IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, July 8 — Rep. Stephen Bolles (R) Wis., and a veteran newspaperman, died at his Washington home today from a heart attack following an illness of several days. Bolles, who was editor of the Janesville, Wis., Gazette for a score of years, was serving his second term in congress.

During his long newspaper career, Bolles covered many of the big stories in the nation. He was an eyewitness to the assassination of President William McKinley at Buffalo.

In congress Bolles vigorously fought for protection of Wisconsin agricultural interests, frequently clashing with the administration over its policies affecting the dairy industry.

A.E.F. Needed To Whip Hitler, Says New Chief Of Middle-East Forces

CAIRO, July 8—Only with the aid of an American expeditionary force can Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler be defeated, finally and totally, on his own soil, Great Britain's new commander-in-chief in the middle east held today.

In his first interview with the press, General Sir Claude Auchinleck, who recently succeeded General Sir Archibald P. Wavell as head of the British forces in the Mediterranean area, was frank in predicting how far the United States must go if Hitlerism is to be brought to an end.

"This war must be won on German soil," he said.

"Therefore I see as much need for American manpower in this war as in the last.

"If this war is to be won properly—and it is not to be won unless it is won properly, with no armistice—it has got to be won in Europe. And in Germany. The Germans must be beaten on their own soil, just the way Napoleon was beaten. If this is the way it is to turn out, we certainly are going to need American manpower."

RECEPTION PLANNED FOR CONN IN MOVIE COLONY

HOLLYWOOD, July 8—Hollywood was planning today to give Billy Conn a warm reception when the fighter and his bride arrive next week for a fling at picture work.

The young heavyweight who put up such a gallant stand against Joe Louis recently has been signed by Republic Studios to play the lead in "Kid Tinsel," an Octavus Roy Cohen fight story. ## EARTH SLIDES, MENACES TOWN

Six Houses Crushed At Mine Scene; Others May Be Saved

ST. CHARLES, Va., July 8 — Six houses were crushed and others were threatened today by a huge slide of earth moving slowly into a hollow on Little Black Mountain, near mining operations conducted by the Blue Diamond Com. ny.

Pressure from piled-up waste slate was said to have loosened an area of earth 50 feet wide and as much as 15 feet deep. It had moved approximately 2,000 feet today, after starting late yesterday. The crushed houses were vacated, and no one was injured.

Approximately 50 houses were located in the hollow into which the slide moved, but it was expected most of them would escape damage. The Blue Diamond Company employs 4,000 mine workers on the mountain, but only homes in the one hollow were menaced.

Nearly a week of rains softened the earth of the slide.

Heavy Bombers, Fighters Swarm Over Channel In New Attack

SOUTHAMPTON AREA HIT

Ruhr, Rhineland, Lowland Areas Feel Brunt Of All-Out Assault

LONDON, July 8—Heavy British bombers, escorted by swarms of RAF fighters, delivered another slashing attack against Nazi-occupied France today after hammering western Germany and the "invasion coast" during the night.

In the newest daylight attack, it was stated, the British planes successfully bombed a synthetic oil plant between Lens and Bethune and destroyed seven enemy fighting planes in aerial combats.

Five British fighters and one bomber were reported missing, but two British pilots were said to be safe.

Last night and early this morning the RAF rained bombs on western Germany, the "invasion coast" and other sections of occupied France.

The RAF night attacks coincided with a sharp German raid on Southampton during which waves of Nazi planes dropped bombs on all sections of the south coast seaport, causing a number of casualties and widespread destruction. Scores were left homeless as their houses were reduced to rubble.

Describing the British attacks, the Air Ministry communique said: "Large numbers of RAF planes (Continued on Page Two)

CRAZED BANDITS TERRORIZE TWO, ESCAPE IN WEST

STOCKTON, CAL., July 8—Search spread throughout three western states today for two heavily-armed bandits, one of them identified as a paroled convict, who kidnaped and terrorized a young Oakland couple on a wild 80-mile ride.

The gunmen, believed to be crazed with marihuana, and bragging of the crimes they had committed, fled in a stolen car after leaving their victims tied up in a cemetery near Stockton.

Highway patrolmen and police were scouring roads throughout California, Oregon and Nevada today, as almost 24 hours passed without trace of the fugitives or the stolen car.

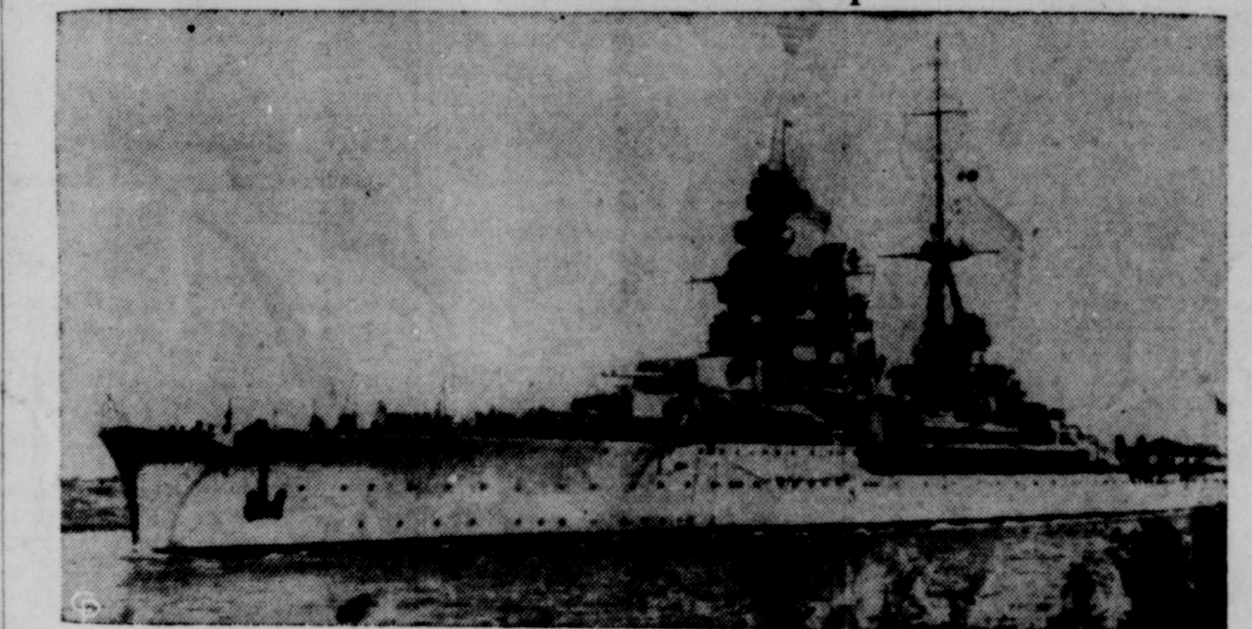

One of the men was identified from Rogue's Gallery photos as Carl Westover, 21, recently paroled from San Quentin and wanted in Stockton and Los Angeles for kidnapping, robbery and grand theft.

The victims were Katherine Dietz, 21, and Paul Ashbrook, 21. After a wild ride to Stockton, they left the couple near Stockton, robbing them of $45.

Harold Strous Falls Under Hay Wagon At Property Near Laurelville

Harold Strous, 41, of Laurelville, superintendent of Saltcreek Township school, was injured painfully but not seriously Monday about 5 p. m. when he fainted and fell under a wagon he was riding into a hay field.

TENNESSEE MAN INJURED AS CAR TIRE BLOWS OUT

A Tennessee car turned over on Route 23, three miles south of Circleville, Tuesday at 6 a. m. when the right front tire blew out, sending its driver to Berger Hospital for treatment for left hand lacerations.

The driver, Charles Houser, 37, 726 Forest Street, Kingsport, Tenn., was released from the hospital after treatment.

Other occupants of the car, Mrs. Houser and Charles K. Mullens, also of Kingsport, were not injured.

The top and front end of the car, a 1940 Mercury, were badly damaged, according to Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer, when it turned over in the road and came to a rest on its top.

Mr. and Mrs. Houser and their friend, Mr. Mullens, were on their way to Cleveland to visit relatives, Deputy Custer said.

Stores Of City Start Summer Closing Plan

Beginning Wednesday noon and continuing each Wednesday during July and August, thirty-five Circleville merchants will close their stores for the rest of the day.

Stores will close at 12 noon each Wednesday. I. W. Kinsey, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday that practically every member of the Retail Merchants' Division had agreed to cooperate with the closing program.

"Closing the stores at noon on Wednesday will enable store employees to get a little rest during the vacation season when many of the merchants are short of help," President Kinsey said.

Merchants believe the closing program will not substantially reduce their week's proceeds, since closing on Wednesday afternoons should be reflected in better business on other days of the week.

invaded western Germany last night. The main objectives were Cologne, Osnabruck, Munchen-Gladbach, Frankfurt and Munster. At each city a large force did widespread damage.

Great Fires Observed

"The attack was highly successful and great fires were left burning. Factory buildings and warehouses were seen to collapse. Important railway junctions were hit repeatedly.

"Elsewhere in the Ruhr and Rhineland other targets were attacked especially Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Krefeld.

"Lighter attacks were made on the docks at Ostend, Dunkirk, Boulogne and Denheider and on oil stores at Amsterdam."

In the Reich itself, British planes heavily bombed the industrial cities of Cologne, Osnabruck, Munster and Frankfurt as well as other points.

(Editor's Note: A Berlin announcement said British planes dropped bombs on various places in northern and western Germany, causing slight property damage and killing a number of civilians.)

The stupendous RAF attacks on Nazi targets were carried out while German raiders levelled a short but sharp attack on Southampton.

The RAF attack on the "invasion coast" was a terrific one and lasted from midnight to dawn.

Roar Heard In Channel

During these hours residents of the southeast English coast were kept awake by a continuous roar as the British bombers swarmed across the channel to France to punish German military installations.

Bomb explosions in the Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne areas shook the English coast alarmingly.

Daylight bombers and fighters once more took up the offensive, raining bombs on German targets in northern France while additional patrols scoured the channel area, hunting for Nazi Messerschmitts.

75 OF COUNTY'S WPA MEN TO BE TAKEN OFF JOB

Wednesday will be the last day's work for 75 WPA men now stationed on construction projects in the county. WPA officials announced Tuesday.

Wednesday night, those men cut from the WPA roles by a statewide slash in WPA lists, will be given their pay and told not to report for work on Thursday morning.

Who will be dropped from the WPA roles will be determined by the financial needs of the workers, local officials said, with those needing employment worst remaining on the work lists. The cancellation will be made at state WPA headquarters.

The cut will leave 150 men still working on the county's road projects and County Engineer Henry McCrady has reported that the reduction should not cripple the projects to any great extent.

How many of those 75 men dropped from the WPA roles Wednesday can find employment, local officials did not say, although there is reported to be a definite shortage of farm labor in the county and many may find work in the harvest fields.

With completion of the grain harvest and the corn cutting season this fall, however, it may be necessary to place some of them on direct relief, Relief Director Delos Marcy has pointed out.

CONTINUED STRIFE ON FRONTIER IS REPORTED

A. A. A. REMINDS WHEAT FARMER OF CARD NEED

Persons Who Exceed Quota Unable To Market Crop Without Permit

Boggs Says Program Being Marked By Confusion Of Some Details

Wheat farmers who have exceeded 1941 AAA wheat allotments were reminded Tuesday by AAA Chairman John G. Boggs that no 1941 wheat can be sold or fed without first securing a wheat marketing card from the Pickaway County AAA Committee.

A lot of confusion exists concerning the penalty on excess wheat and the method of determining excess production. Any farmer, he explained, who has planted more than 15 acres of wheat and has exceeded an allotment of 10 acres or more has excess wheat which must be disposed of before a wheat marketing card can be secured.

Chairman Boggs cited the following example:

A farmer has an allotment of 16 acres. He planted 23 acres for harvest. His normal yield as determined by the county committee is 19 bushels an acre, and his actual yield is 25 bushels an acre. He has exceeded his allotment by 7 acres. The excess production therefore is 7 acres (times the normal production (the normal or actual production, whichever is smaller) of 19 bushels an acre or 133 bushels. The penalty on the excess production would amount to $65.17 which must be paid before any of the wheat on the remaining 16 acres or the allotment can be sold or fed.

May Store Excess

Chairman Boggs explained that the producer may delay payment of the penalty by storing the excess wheat and secure a loan at approximately 65 cents a bushel, or turn it over to the Secretary of Agriculture for relief purposes. When this is done, the farmer receives a marketing card permitting him to feed or sell the wheat produced on the acreage allotment. This is his marketing quota or free wheat in addition to any 1940 wheat in his possession and wheat produced above his normal yield on the excess acreage.

If any of the free wheat or excess wheat is sold without a marketing card, the penalty will be deducted by the buyer at the time the first bushel is marketed. A lien in favor of the U. S. Government is held on the entire crop of wheat until the penalty is paid or wheat is stored in an approved manner or given to the Secretary of Agriculture for relief purposes.

Excess wheat cannot be destroyed, fed, or disposed of in any way other than the methods prescribed by the marketing quota law to avoid payment of the penalty.

The next in line for size, for labor, $37.50. Some repair work was ordered for Walnut Street. And just in case you don't know where that is, you'll find it "going North and South" fronting the school building. And mentioning the school building, we are reminded that the local school board is to be in session there this evening.

WAR AFFECTS SHEEPSKINS
STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Thousands of diplomas were handed to college students in June but the old sheepskin "ain't what it used to be," according to William S. Hoffman, Pennsylvania State College registrar. The color and quality of the 1941 crop of sheepskin was affected by the war, Hoffman said. This year the skins came from older sheep and were coarser in grade and the 1941 diplomas were slightly tinged with yellow.

Is it hot enough for you? Well, "Mr. District Attorney" is going to make you shiver with a haunted house mystery on Wednesday, July 16, at 8:30 p. m. "The Case of the Man in Black," a mysterious murderer, fills the town with fear until the D. A. finally tracks him down.

MARTIN PRESENTATION
Originally scheduled several weeks ago "Room Service," a hilarious farce which charmed Broadway and movie audiences, finally comes to radio via Charles Martin's "Great Moments From Great Plays," Friday, July 11, at 8 p. m. Martin promises an all-star cast. The story concerns a producer who tries to keep his company in a hotel room until he can find a backer. Facing eviction, he puts the playwright to bed and has one of the actors pose as a doctor to testify that the patient is too ill to be moved. The hotel management having played "angel" to the company up to this point, finally decides to back the play, which turns out to be a hit. Ray Block's 21-piece orchestra supplies the background music.

John Reed King, co-star with Arlene Francis on "What's My Name?" on Sundays at 7 p. m., was graduated from Princeton where he played on the football

Reference to a theatrical curtain on radio is usually a myth, but not so with Phil Spitalny's "Hour of Charm." Studio where they do their stuff, actually has a curtain which is drawn together when the broadcast has ended. This is one program that never has the anti-climax of an exit scramble by musicians in full view of the audience.

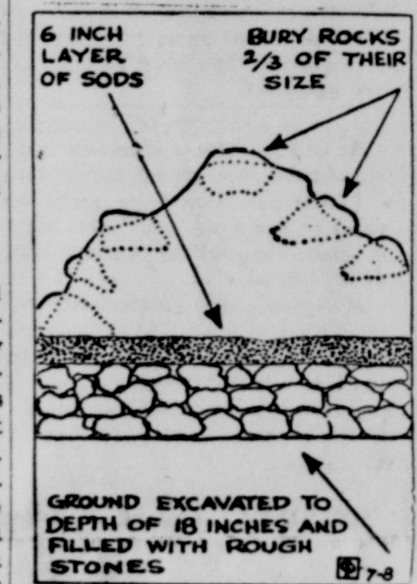

Advance sales of tickets for James Melton's concert at the Hollywood Bowl, opening the summer season there this month, indicate that it will be one of the biggest premiere crowds since the concerts were inaugurated there. Melton's Monday night program will come from the west coast during that week.

Peter Van Steeden expects to use many of the musicians he's now batoning on "Mr. District Attorney" on the new "Quizzer Baseball" series for which he'll also supply music during the summer. The quiz show is heard at 9 p. m. Wednesdays and "Mr. D. A." follows immediately after on the same chain.

There's a possibility that Lyn Murray will be the handleader on at least one of the "Forecast" programs. Several of the stars scheduled to appear on this experimental series have asked for original music by Murray and want him to direct for them.

Today's Garden-Graph

A successful rock garden, even though a small one, requires a truly naturalistic setting. The way to acquire this is by placing the rocks just as they appear in the woods on fields. A jumbled mass

How to build a rock garden
of stones without soil enough between the plant roots should be avoided. On the other hand, do not have the rock garden resemble a pudding with stones as raisins. As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, it is most important that the rocks be buried at least one-half to two-thirds their size. This gives a feeling of security and permanency as well adding to the general appearance. Rocks act as foils to silhouette the plants and they also serve to retain moisture and release minerals.

Guardsmen Who Finish Training Must Sign Up For Draft

Men who have served in the active National Guard are required to register immediately on expiration of their service, even though they are not, under certain conditions, liable for further peacetime training and service under the Selective Service Act.

That fact was stressed Tuesday by Lieut. Col. C. W. Goble, Director of Selective Service for Ohio, who said that all such men should present themselves to a local board for registration immediately upon their discharge.

"The act is specific," the Director said, "in requiring registration of men within the age group of 21 to 36 who have served in the National Guard. Men who were members of the active National Guard on October 16 last, and have completed six or more consecutive years, are relieved from liability for peacetime service and training, but they must register. Those who were members of the National Guard and have served less than six years are relieved neither from registration nor training."

The Director said, further, that his attention had been called to the fact that some men in the National Guard in federal service who have been discharged because of expiration of their service have not registered. They should do so immediately, he declared, and added that the War Department has now issued instructions that such men shall be notified by their organization commanders at the time of their discharge of the necessity to register.

CUSSINS AND FEARN CO. HAS ANNIVERSARY SALE

One reads everywhere about prices going higher. But it is news when you read about prices actually lower than last July on building supplies, roofing, paints, tires, batteries and many other things.

Cussins and Fearn, in staging its annual July Good-Will sale which starts Thursday, states that through contracts made months ago it has been able to bring the same standard merchandise at low levels that actually break records in 48 years of low prices.

In an effort to do their part to keep prices low, Cussins and Fearn buyers placed large orders months ago. The effects of their efforts are now being shown in the extra low prices offered during the 48th anniversary celebration.

Howard McKee, manager of the Circleville Cussins & Fearn store, said: "Naturally, these prices are good only while present stocks last. While the sale continues throughout July, many features are expected to sell quickly and we encourage our friends to buy early to avoid disappointment."

TAX NOTES

HOW would you like a little discount on your income and excess profits taxes? Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has announced an arrangement which makes that possible. Beginning August 1, he says, the treasury will offer through the banks two types of tax notes. Taxpayers may buy them periodically, say one a month, and later turn them back in payment of federal taxes.

One type of the notes will be in denominations of $25, $50 and $100. Purchasers will get an extra tax credit for every month between purchase date and tax-paying date. For example, the $100 note will be worth 16 cents a month for this purpose.

The other type of notes will run in larger sums for the big taxpayers. The treasury will pay four cents a month for every $100 of such notes.

This seems to be a good way to create a fund for paying taxes and save a little thereby.

WEDDING BOOM

JUNE, the big wedding month, had more than her quota this year. And evidently the war is responsible. Instead of deterring prospective brides and grooms from committing matrimony, the precarious situation seems to drive them to it. The same tendency is seen in Canada, where all matrimonial records have been broken lately.

This is a rather natural procedure. Engaged couples feel that life at best is uncertain in these times, and whatever life they may have together is so much to the good. There is the added consideration that women are self-supporting now to a far greater extent than they used to be, so that in most cases it may be assumed that they can take care of themselves if they have to, in the absence of their husbands.

STEEL CAVALRY

PICTURES of American cavalry divisions on parade, or in battle formation, thrill American hearts as usual. There is something about a horse! And there is much about a cavalry charge, whether bent on its stern business in battle or merely on exhibition.

But do many Americans suppose that those mounted troops and their valiant chargers will actually be used in modern warfare? It seems hardly possible, ex-

ARMY RUNNING "AIRLINE"

WASHINGTON—Thanks to its potent lobby, Pan-American Airways recently succeeded in blocking the establishment of a competing airline across the Atlantic. The White House, State Department, Army and Navy wanted the second service, but Pan-Am had more influence with a majority of the U. S. Senate.

No announcement has been made about it, but today there is another competing airline across the Atlantic. It is operated by the U. S. Army Air Corps, and was established because of Pan-Am's inability to meet the war-booming demand for transatlantic service.

Using four-motor heavy bombers, the planes carry only officials and official pouches to and from England. Ambassador Winant returned to London by this means.

The American "port" of this new airline is the Army's great air base at Bolling Field, Va. The service is under the direction of Colonel Robert Olds, ace Air Corps commander, who was recently put in charge of ferrying Lend-Lease bombers from the West Coast airplane plants to Britain. The new airline operates as part of that service.

At present two bombers are in use, and more are expected to be added. The planes are manned by Air Corps crews and operate on closely-guarded schedules and over a secret route.

"HIS MAJESTY'S SHIP"

Serious-minded Lord Halifax, British Ambassador, has his lighter moments. The other day he entertained friends at the State Department with this story:

A sailor from a visiting British warship was wandering around Boston. A woman stopped him and asked the meaning of the letters "H. M. S." on his hat. He replied, "H'I Mustn't Say."

DEFENSE RAIL BOSS

OPM chiefs aren't admitting it, but they want the President to replace Ralph Budd, Burlington Railroad executive, as Defense Rail Director.

Number 1 choice as his successor is Joseph B. Eastman, veteran chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission and one of the greatest transportation experts in the country.

cept for work in open plains and on frontier errands.

Cavalry for war business is nearly all mechanized now, except for use in large, open countries like Russia, where horses may still serve to carry fighting men and drag guns. Even there, modern and heavily armed and armored tanks that can go swiftly and hit hard are the shock-units of war. They have been the main dependence of the conquering Nazis on all fronts. And up-to-date experts say that such mechanized units are what we ourselves need most.

WORLD AT A GLANCE . . . . .

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

LATIN AMERICA probably will get the pick of the United States consular personnel which now is being fired out of the Axis-dominated part of Europe. Considering that there are nine of these countries whose Yankee consular staffs will be on the loose and that we've had several consulates in each of them, it's obvious that the number of men seeking assignments will be considerable.

Some will get tours of duty in Washington, for the state department itself is undermanned. However, it needs no such small army as will be available.

Most of our Latin American consulates, though, are undermanned, too. They'll be glad of additional help. They require, indeed, more of it than a few years ago, due to Pan-American activities, now accentuated by our urgent wartime desire for still closer trade relationships with our southern neighbors.

Our European-expelled consular contingent will have a big advantage over new men at the game, in that they've had plenty of training in advance. To be sure, not many of them will be familiar with Latin American local conditions or with the Spanish and Portuguese languages. The state department has, however, established a school for these chaps, in connection with the University of Chicago. Its course is of only a few months' duration, but it's tremendously intensive. By the time it's through with a student, already consularly well educated, he's qualified for almost any post.

I've a son-in-law of my own, a state department assistant for the past year, who's soon to start in on the Chicago grind. He doesn't need it as much as the average, having previously held down a vice consular job for several years in Argentina. He figures, though, that this Chicago post-graduate course will make him a super-past-master at the game.

CONSULS DON'T TRADE

It's true that consuls and vice consuls don't dabble in actual trade.

Business has to be developed by sure-enough businessmen, but our business concerns are sending their representatives to Latin America increasingly, every day, to attend to this part of the campaign.

We and the Latins also are exchanging visiting delegations of army and navy officers and government officials likewise. Recently we've had a bunch of South American newspapermen here, getting acquainted with us and writing, while in our midst, for our Yankee publications. The other day I had a letter from a Detroit editor who's organizing a party of our own scribes to tour all the Americas—Mexico, Central, South and Insular.

The trouble with us, at both ends of the line, is that we don't visit one another's countries soon enough or stay long enough to assimilate our respective atmospheres—"cultures" is the technical term. It's necessary to LIVE among a people to get to KNOW 'em. I did, for a matter of years, among the Argentines, and I think they liked me pretty well, as I did them, because we understood each other.

Lately I had a call from John White, a New York City correspondent in Buenos Aires for hard on three decades—today's best-posted North American newspaperman on the southern continent. I think.

BUNGLED EFFORT

John's verdict is that a deal of our Pan-American effort is bungled. I know what he means. Our business representatives are too abrupt and unceremonious. The Latins call for affability. We've got exceptions. But generally we set the Latins' teeth on edge by our unceremoniousness.

But, gosh! At last we're TRYING—which we didn't attempt for a long while after the last war.

What OUR businessmen and others need is an experienced, long locally residential bunch of their fellow countrymen, to absorb 'em as they arrive, and teach 'em how to behave.

That's the stunt for a competent Yankee diplomatic and consular service. Maybe the right kind of consular agents is more important than our ambassadors and their attaches, for our embassies are concentrated, whereas consulate are scattered hither and yon, and more approachable, too.

Care of Baby's First Permanent Tooth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Yesterday I discussed the new ideas of modern dentistry on the care of the temporary teeth. It is known now that they should be watched and cared for as regularly as the permanent teeth, because the health and proper position in the mouth of the permanent teeth may depend on the health and eruption of the temporary teeth.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

"They are only baby teeth—don't bother with them"—this is a saying that should be outmoded and discarded.

But by all odds the most important tooth of childhood is the one that comes in during about the fifth or sixth year.

The sixth year tooth is not a baby tooth but the first permanent tooth!

And therein lies its importance. It is usually regarded as a temporary tooth, by the parents. And if it begins to show decay, it all too often is neglected on those grounds. The decay is allowed to go on, the tooth is lost and the whole firmness of the arch of the mouth is lost forever, leading to a weak adult arch and the subsequent sacrifice of many teeth that would not have needed to be sacrificed if this precaution had been observed.

Twenty Temporary Teeth

The temporary teeth are twenty in number. If you divide each upper and lower jaw into halves, there are five milk teeth in each half of each upper and each lower jaw. The first to come in are the central incisors, upper and lower, two in each jaw, then beside them, the lateral incisors, then a space is skipped and the first molars come in, then the cuspids between the lateral incisors and the first molars, then the second molars. The time table is:

Central incisors between 5th and 8th months.

Lateral incisors between 7th and 10th months.

First molars between 12th and 16th months.

Cuspids between 14th and 20th months.

Second molars between 20th and 30th months.

The lower teeth generally precede the upper by a few weeks. There is, of course, variation in this and it may be the third or fourth year before all the temporary, or milk, teeth are in.

First Permanent Tooth

And so fast does time go at this interesting period of life, that the parents may not realize when the first permanent tooth comes in behind the last of the temporary, at the fifth or sixth year. Another fact that may cause confusion and false thinking is that the first permanent tooth does not force any temporary tooth out, but comes in a clear space.

Parents should keep a time table of the temporary teeth where they can refer to it. Count the teeth from the midline. The sixth that comes in is the first permanent tooth. For heaven's sake, for everybody's sake, take care of that tooth.

It is especially soft and liable to decay. If any decay starts, have it treated immediately. To lose that tooth in upper or lower jaw may be to wreck a mouth for life.

DEATH AT THE SWITCH

RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY

HENRY WAS surprised to note that it was 9 o'clock as he ate his breakfast in preparation to go to the special meeting of the model railroad club. He had never breakfasted as late before in his life—then, he had never before been in as poor condition. He felt that except for his face he must be black and blue all over.

"I've ordered a taxi to come out from the village and get us," Jones explained as Henry started on his last pancake. "I've got to get you to Wildwood lodge without the chance of anyone seeing you. You can lie on the floor."

Henry groaned inwardly. "Of course the taxi driver will have to be in on the deception," Jones continued. "We don't know who in the village may be a friend and accomplice of the murderer, so to be on the safe side we'll keep the taxi driver at the lodge until after the meeting starts."

"Goodness!" gasped Mrs. Potter, dropping a kettle on the stove, "you don't think a taxi driver would help the murderer, do you?" Jones shrugged. "I hear a car outside now. Must be our transportation. Ready, Henry?"

The little clerk swallowed the last of his coffee. "Ready," he said. And he had thought he would be running the show!

Jones opened the door to make sure there was no one in sight but the cab driver. He tucked the model locomotive under his arm. "Follow me quickly."

Henry felt silly taking a taxi in broad daylight for a half mile ride. Pete Simmons, the driver, grinned, but Henry couldn't grin back.

Pete's grin vanished when his smaller fare sat on the floor. Jones offered no explanation. Pete's mouth dropped open as he stood holding the door. He shut the door in a hurry and climbed into his seat. He drove like mad. Henry didn't protest. The ride was painful, but it was short.

"We'd like you to wait here," announced Jones when the cab slid to a stop on the gravelled drive of the deserted lodge.

"But, gee! Maybe there's business waiting in the village. I . . ."

Jones pulled a five-dollar bill from his pocket. "Oh, that's different!" said Pete. "Come inside and wait," Jones directed.

Pete looked askance at Henry as the three of them climbed out of the cab. When Henry did not offer to walk on his hands, the driver's suspicions seemed to relax. He turned his nervous gaze instead on the huge ruins of the building. "Gosh, what a joint!"

"Never been here before?" Jones inquired in surprise.

"Sure, but it was classy then. Look at it now. Windows broken, paint peeling, porch sagging, vines growing over the walls. No wonder old man Ives got bumped off here!" "What do you mean by that? Why should anyone—bump him off—here?"

"I dunno why. But if someone was going to shoot him, this would be the place to do it, wouldn't it?" "Theatrical, eh?" Jones looked thoughtfully at Henry. "May be something to think about. The killing of Ives certainly was staged."

Henry was impatient. "Why keep guessing about it when in a few minutes we'll have the murderer?" The eyes of the taxi driver popped wide. "What's that?"

"Never mind," snapped Jones. "Oh—of, of course not!" agreed Pete. He rubbed his hands. "Well, here we are. What are we waiting for? Let's go in—and meet the murderer."

They stepped down to the basement door. It opened inward before Jones touched the handle. Sheriff McBride welcomed them in. "How come?" inquired Jones. "One day the chief of police is in charge. Next day the sheriff takes over."

McBride grunted. "He really isn't chief of police. The village isn't incorporated. When things get too tough for him I take charge." "Informal," observed Jones. "The constable is a chief. His deputies are lieutenants and sergeants and captains. However, I suppose it adds atmosphere to village life and really doesn't matter as long as the criminal is captured—if he is captured."

"Gosh!" whispered Pete, wandering on into the depths of the big room with its miniature landscapes and tracks and trains.

Henry's mouth twisted. "You wasted five dollars paying that taxi driver to stay here. You should have charged admission."

Jones ignored the comment. To the sheriff he announced, "Members of the model railroad club should begin arriving in a few minutes. Mr. Potter will open the door for them. You can stand behind him in the shadows and spot the one who seems most startled to see him. I suppose you have plenty of men on hand in case there is trouble?"

The sheriff nodded. "I'll handle this, Mr. Jones, if you please. That's about the way I'd figured to do it. I've got men spotted all around the building in case the fellow tries to make a getaway. Mr. Potter, it all depends on you."

Henry took a deep breath. He glanced sideways at Jones. "I'm glad I am at last going to be of real help. Sorry I didn't recognize the fellow last night."

"You know it was a man, though?"

"Yes, I'm sure of that. It was no woman at the top of that well!"

"Good. That narrows our hunt. We know that Ives was killed by one of seven men in the building Wednesday night. Let's see! They were Stanley King, Louis Spinelli, Laurence Harkness, Professor Bisbee, Hans Svenson, yourself and, and . . . who was the seventh?"

"There was no one else but Ives."

"Right. Well, Ives and Bisbee are out of the way. He said it without emotion. That leaves four men besides yourself. Only four. That ought to be easy."

"In case they fail to respond to the test," Jones added, "I have another test here I propose to try. He patted the locomotive under his arm."

The sheriff sniffed. "What gives you the idea that toy can prove anything?"

"Because the peculiar operation of a locomotive in this miniature railroad was in some way linked with the killing of John Ives."

"We won't need to try your test, whatever it is," said Henry. "My test can't fail."

"It had better not," the sheriff told him. "If it does, you are our most likely suspect, Henry."

"W-what?" Henry stepped back as though someone had struck him across the face.

"You've gone to great pains to build up a case with us against one of four men," the sheriff explained. "You've also made it clear that unless they react as you predict, they are innocent. I have it clear up the mystery, Henry, for your sake."

"I've gone to great pains? My Lord! Don't you believe me?"

"Hush!" warned Jones. "Shut the door, Sheriff. Laurence Harkness is walking up the drive."

2. Why did John Hancock sign the Declaration of Independence first?
3. What is bulimia?

Words of Wisdom

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; in feelings, not in figures on the dial; we should count time by heartbeats. He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.—Bailey.

Hints on Etiquette

A man should take off his hat when he is in a club, hotel or apartment house elevator. It is not necessary for him to do so in the elevator of a store or business building, as they are public places. If he prefers to do so, however, the courteous gesture is appreciated.

Today's Horoscope

Safeguarding of the health is necessary for those of you who have birthdays today. You should also watch your business affairs and correspondence carefully, guarding against theft and even arson. Otherwise, gain and happiness are prognosticated for you during the next year. Born on this date, a child will have many troubles with superiors and business associates, and will be in danger of loss through trickery. Domestic happiness is prophesied for such a one, however.

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, July 8

THE PLANETARY configurations for this day must, in a general way, be interpreted as difficult, hazardous and of ill omen. There may be much to contend with in all business relations, which may be subject to peculiar or strange irregularities, with pitfalls, treachery and fraud, especially where writings, documents or verbal agreements are involved. There may be much stubborn opposition from higher-ups, although relatives and social contacts may be beneficial. Safeguard the health as well as the property from danger. When momentous decisions must be made, the inner guidance or intuitions may be safe.

Those whose birthday it is may have to endure a difficult year in business affairs, but will find compensations in private happiness and solace. There may be menace of opposition from high places, but this could be offset by friends or elders giving aid in critical places. The intuitions or spiritual vision may be relied upon but there are

BAER NEXT FOE FOR BILLY CONN IN GOTHAM RING

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, July 8—Billy Conn, boxing's best looking and most recent bridegroom, will get back to the rather sordid business of making a living with his fists in October and his parental pugilistic guardian, Promoter Mike Jacobs, wants him to fight none other than that bon vivant, raconteur and perennial ring juvenile, Maximilian Adelbert Baer. Conn and his manager, Johnny Ray, conferred with Promoter Jacobs about the match today but it will not be closed until Baer and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, arrive next week.

IMPROVED PLAY IN JUNE CAUSES NEW RED HOPE

CINCINNATI, July 8—There is a wave of optimism in the camp of the Cincinnati Reds. They were encouraged by the June figures, which revealed they played the best ball in the National League during that month, and they feel they are in position to do still better from here on in. Thursday they start their third straight game will be played in Flatbush, then the club will tour to Boston, New York, and Philadelphia before returning to their own ballpark. This is a mighty important trip to the Reds, for if they can emerge from it at least no worse than they start, or can pick up a bit of ground, they will be in position to stage a drive, for the schedule is very much in their favor from that point on.

Principal encouragement comes from the increase in the club's batting averages. Jimmy Gleason, Mike McCormick and Lloyd Waner, who have been patrolling the outfield regularly of late, have begun to hit like outfielders are supposed to, and this upswing has enhanced the general outlook. A good hitting outfield, plus what other strength the club has to go with its marvelous pitching, is all the club needs to cause a National League commotion.

Don't ever get the idea that the contending clubs don't fear the Reds. They do, and a surge on their part would strike fear in the hearts of the Dodgers, Cardinals, and Giants.

The Reds' next home stand will start with a ladies' day game Tuesday, July 22, against the Brooklyn Dodgers. A night game will be played the following evening. Seventeen games in all will be played at Crosley Field during that home stand.

'BEANED' CLUB SWINGER TAKES SPOT IN P. G. A.

By Harold Heroux

CHERRY HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, DENVER, July 8—This is the story about a baseball player who "got beaned" by a fast ball, and the efforts of his brother to stop him from being gun-shy.

The brother's efforts failed. So, the "beaned" player decided to take up another sport. He picked golf—and at this writing, he is the "man of the hour" in the current National P.G.A. championship tournament at Cherry Hills.

He who got "beaned" was Harry Bassler, now 31 years old but quite a baseball star when he went to high school at Santa Monica, Cal. He is now a golf pro at Los Altos, which is a couple of brassie shots from San Francisco.

The brother who hated to see little Harry give up baseball was Johnny Bassler, once a leading name in Major Leagues. He is now coach of the Hollywood Club of the Pacific Coast League.

"After I got 'beaned,' Johnny used to stand all day and pitch cotton balls at me, trying to stop me from being scared at the plate," explained the 155-pound golfer. "But I even ducked from the cotton balls. So, I gave up baseball for golf."

Harry Bassler, who stands only 5 feet 6 1/2 inches tall, is the P.G.A.'s "mnn of the hour" because he is the 50-to-1 shot who tied for the lead with another outsider, E. J. "Dutch" Harrison of Chicago, at the half-way mark in the 36-hole qualifying round.

Both Bassler and Harrison reeled off three-under-par rounds of 68 during the first eighteen holes. Right smack behind them was "Slamming Sam" Snead of Hot Springs, runner-up for the P.G.A. title last year, who carded a 69.

Only five players cracked par during the initial eighteen. The others, besides Bassler, Harrison

RED BIRDS PUT 13 TO 3 THUMP ON MILLER NINE

COLUMBUS, July 8—It becomes increasingly difficult to determine whether the American Association, cradle of big league talent, is doing the better job this season of developing hitting or hurling.

On the hitting side of the ledger there are two of yesterday's games where powerhouse attacks completely overwhelmed the opposition—Columbus' 16 hit, 13 to 3 win over the league-leading Minneapolis Brewers, and Louisville's 13 hit, 9 to 3 victory over Milwaukee.

For those who like hurlers' battles, there were two 2 to 1 games—Toledo over St. Paul and Indianapolis over Kansas City.

The Columbus win over the Millers perhaps was most significant cutting at it did the loop leaders' margin to a single game over Louisville, and bringing the Birds themselves to a point only two games off the pace. Although the season is hovering around the 80-game mark, there are only three games difference between first and fourth place.

Louisville was trailing 3 to 1 going into the last of the lucky seventh, when they laid down a seven-run marriage that nearly swept the last-place Brewers out of the ball park. A three-run homer by June Andres featured the attack.

Indianapolis gained its victory over the Blues by making the most of its hits. Each side garnered six bingles, with Logan getting credit for the win and Wensloff being charged with the loss.

Toledo was outthit decisively, nine to six, but Wirkkala scattered his safeties in better fashion to gain the hurling win over St. Paul's Smith.

HERE ARE SCORES MADE BY OHIO PGA GOLFERS

FELLER, WYATT TO TAKE MOUND IN 'STAR' FRAY

Slugging Advantage May Give American League Outfit An Edge

By Russell Fuller

DETROIT, July 8—With earlier threats of rain apparently dispelled, the baseball aces of the land lined up today for the ninth annual Major League all star game in Briggs Stadium beginning at 1:30 p. m.

While there was some light rain during the night, the weatherman insisted the day would be only partly cloudy and cool. As a matter of fact, the sun came up brightly, eliminating belief a postponement to tomorrow would be necessary.

Bobby Feller, Cleveland's 23-year-old fireball artist who has won 16 and lost four games this year was the starting mound choice for the American League aggregation. His National League opponent was to be Brooklyn's "Whitlow" Wyatt who has topped 13 games and dropped four this season. Both men are right handers.

Manager Del Baker of the American League made a last minute switch in his lineup, announcing that Bobby Doerr, of Boston, would start at second base, instead of Joe Gordon, New York. Baker, also, made slight revisions in his batting order. Manager Bill McKee of the National League stood pat on his initial lineup as it was announced yesterday.

The lineups, still subject to last minute changes, are:

AMERICAN LEAGUE
Doerr, second base.
Travis, third base.
J. D. Maggio, center field.
Williams, left field.
Heath, right field.
Cronin, shortstop.
York, first base.
Dickey, pitcher.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Hack, third base.
Frey, second base.
Reiser, center field.
Mize, first base.
Ott, right field.
Elliott, left field.
Miller, shortstop.
Owen, catcher.
Wyatt, pitcher.

The umpires are Ralph Pinelli and Louis Jorda from the National League and William T. Grieve and William R. Summers from the American League.

Any way you looked at it, the American League aggregation had a terrific edge on the National Leaguers in batting power. The way the teams lined up at the start, the junior circuit batsmen held a better than 50 percent point slugging margin over their rivals. This, coupled with the fact that Feller was to start, made the Americans favorites to take their sixth game in nine starts.

The size of the crowd depended on the weather and there were still some tickets available this morning. Yesterday's rain plus comparatively cool weather today made officials revise downward their previous crowd estimate of between 55,000 and 57,000. They were willing to settle now for 50,000.

The first ball was to be tossed out by District Attorney Thomas Dewey of New York City. He is head of the United Service Organizations which will receive the proceeds from this game.

Present for the encounter were sports notable from all over the country including President Ford Frick of the National League and President Will Harridge of the American League. Elmer Layden, czar of the National Professional Football League, was in town for the tussle as were several baseball greats of another year including the inimitable Dizzy Dean.

Names Of 19 Candidates, Special Levy On Ballot

Election Board Receives Forms From State; To Be Printed Soon

Board of elections officials Tuesday received primary ballot forms from state election headquarters and announced that local ballots would be prepared immediately and probably would go to the printer sometime next week.

City ballots will contain names of nineteen candidates.

They are: Mayor: W. B. Cady and B. H. Gordon, Democrats; A. J. Lyle, Republican.

President of Council: John C. Goeller, Democrat.

Councilman-at-Large: Clarence Helvering and Frank A. Lynch, Democrats; C. O. Leist, Republican.

First Ward: J. D. Mason, Democrat; George Fissell, Republican.

Second Ward: Julius Helwagen, Democrat.

Third Ward: George Crites, Democrat.

Fourth Ward: William Reid and Boyd Horn, Democrats; Rev. O. L. Ferguson, Republican.

Solicitor: Joseph W. Adkins, Democrat.

Treasurer: Joseph Brink and John E. Himrod, Democrats; Charles Kirkpatrick, Republican.

Primary voters in the city will be given two ballots, one containing the names of candidates and the other the 1½ mill operating levy. The levy, which requires a 65 percent vote for passage, will be effective for two years. Revenue from the levy will be placed in the city's general fund for current operating expenses for the coming year.

After primary ballots have been prepared they must be approved by the chairmen of both the Democratic and Republican committees, and by the board of elections. Following their approval they will be sent to the printer.

Both Democratic Chairman Carl Leist and Republican Chairman Tom Renick said Tuesday that activity within their parties was quiet. Both said no meetings had been scheduled.

ICELAND ACTION DRAWS PRAISE FROM WILLKIE

NEW YORK, July 8—Terming the American occupation of Iceland a "necessary move," Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, today said that he hoped President Roosevelt's action would be followed by other moves "to further insure the delivery of our products to Britain."

Willkie said he advocated the Iceland action in a Chicago speech last June "as a necessary precaution for the protection of the United States." Possession of Iceland, he declared, will insure "our ability to protect shipments from the United States to the British Isles."

car and locomotive program last year, when steel was plentiful. However, rail men vigorously contend that Budd has done a good job of coordinating, deny there will be a car shortage this year.

Indirectly they admit there may be one next year, by saying that what happens depends on whether they can get deliveries of the thousands of new cars they have ordered. This year's freight requirements are estimated at 45,000,000 cars, next year at 48,000,000, and 1943, 50,000,000 cars.

Eastman and the President are old friends. In the early years of the New Deal, when railroad consolidation was much in the air, Roosevelt gave Eastman the job of working out a plan. He submitted a comprehensive program, but nothing came of it because of powerful rail and Wall Street opposition.

LOST DAYLIGHT SAVING?
A few days ago the Federal Power Commission, backed by OPM Directors Knudsen and Hillman, called on the people in the Southeastern states to cut down their use of electricity so as to provide more power for urgent defense needs.

Ardently patriotic, the people of this section unquestionably will respond. But the incident illustrates the lack of coordination in the vast defense program.

For months, Defense chiefs have realized the danger of a serious power shortage. And for months there has been knocking around in the labyrinth of Defense offices a recommendation for a nationwide two-hour daylight saving system. Experts estimate that several hundred thousand kilowatts could be obtained by this simple measure. Britain and Germany have had it in operation continuously since the start of the war.

But in the good old "business-as-usual" U.S.A. the move is still only a "recommendation" in a memorandum gathering dust somewhere in a Defense pigeon-hole. Sooner or later a master mind will suddenly come to life and do something about it. Meanwhile, with the power shortage increasing, thousands of kilowatts are being consumed needlessly.

NEW 'MYSTERY' WEAPON USED BY NAZI FORCES

Germans Claim 'Machine' Able To Destroy Parts Of Stalin Line

RUSSIANS HOLDING FAST

Reich's Losses Enormous, Attackers Unable To Cross Dnieper

By International News Service
The now-familiar phrase "mystery weapon" entered the mechanized Russo-German war today.

An official military announcement from Berlin asserted that some new type of "engine" utilized by German shock troops had been brought into play along the Stalin Line to widen breaches made earlier in Russia's fortified wall.

While the Nazis claimed destruction of an entire series of the most modern and strongest Russian concrete bunkers by use of this undescribed weapon, the Soviet high command staunchly insisted that the line was standing firm.

Actually, a communique issued by the Soviet Information Bureau said, all German attempts to crack the Russian defenses and force the Dnieper River "were frustrated with heavy losses to the enemy." Two German infantry battalions and 35 heavy Nazi tanks were "destroyed," the Russian high command said, and many prisoners were taken.

Heavy Blows Traded

While this war on men, tanks and words continued, Britain and Germany exchanged heavy aerial blows. The vital English channel port of Southampton, spared in recent weeks, was heavily attacked by the Luftwaffe while Royal Air Force planes again lashed out at Nazi-occupied France and Germany.

With the United States Navy in occupation of Iceland, the possibly future role of American armed forces in the war was highlighted in an interview given by General Sir Claude Auchinleck, new British commander-in-chief in the middle east.

Only with the air of an American Expeditionary Force, he said, can Adolf Hitler be defeated—finally and totally—and on his own soil. London apparently concurred in Auchinleck's astonishing assertion.

18 MEN WILL BE CALLED TO ARMY AFTER JULY 31

Selective Service officials Tuesday received an advance notice from state headquarters for 18 men for the period beginning July 31. The call is the largest the local board has received since March 18, when 18 others were sent into service.

Local draft officials estimate the call will take all class 1-A men up to and perhaps through Order Number 700.

None of the new registrants, the 21-year-olds who registered on July 1, is expected to be included in the July 31 group, since national headquarters has announced that the national lottery will not be held until the last of the month and local order numbers are not expected to be assigned in time for the call.

The advance notice is yet to be confirmed by an official call.

ICELAND OCCUPATION BRINGS WAR NEAR

By Captain John H. Craig
U. S. Marine Corps, Retired
Occupation of Iceland by American marine and naval forces unquestionably brings war a long step nearer to the United States. It may be a strange sort of war, especially in its beginning. It is easy to imagine circumstances under which each side will begin to shoot, but strategic and political considerations will render both nations reluctant to be the first to declare war.

History may repeat itself. Under somewhat similar circumstances United States and French naval forces started a shooting war in 1798. Ships were captured, other ships sunk by both belligerents. U. S. marines even landed on Santo Domingo, then a Spanish colony, to cut out a French warship. But although hostilities lasted two years, neither side ever got around to declaring war.

The occupation of Iceland as a base is a step that every person with military or naval training must approve. A nation can never have too many outlying bases to serve as outposts for its defense. Squadrons of ships and planes must have land establishments from which to operate. The farther the United States can push these defensive outposts from its own shores, the more notice it will have of the approach of an enemy and the deeper will be the defensive air and naval bases through which hostile ships and planes will have to pass.

By the standards of Admiral Mahan, classic authority on naval war, Iceland is far from being an ideal base. It is huge, glacier-ridden, barren and does not produce food for its own people, let alone enough to feed a garrison such as its size would render necessary. Nor has it any coal, iron or manufacturing facilities. For these reasons, Iceland—Greenland even more so—will never prove satisfactory sites for first class bases, either for attack or defense.

Principal value of Iceland in the present situation is in meeting the threats enumerated by the President against all shipping in the North Atlantic and against the steady flow of munitions to Britain. As a naval and air base in meeting Germany's present submarine-air-surface blockade Iceland is just what the doctor ordered.

Under conditions existing at present there is little doubt that the United States can render the island impregnable to any possible Axis attack, and can keep the surrounding seas and skies reasonably free from submarines and bombing planes. But this could not be done without shooting, and whether American gunners will be ordered to fire on ships and planes in the Iceland zone is a question on which there is as yet no information.

Tremendous aid could be extended to Britain in her vital battle of the Atlantic if the United States were to undertake to police all of the waters of the Atlantic Ocean between the American coastline and Iceland, and assure the safety of convoys as far as Reykjavik, the island capital. This is nearly three-quarters of the distance from New York to Liverpool.

If the United States Navy were to assume responsibility (Continued on Page Two)

ICELAND ACTION CITED AS DEFY TO AXIS POWER

Official Washington Tense After Announcement That Navy Has Taken Area

OTHER BASES GUARDED

Italy Says President Has Violated Promise To Remain In West

BERLIN, July 8—The Wilhelmstrasse awaited instructions from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today before commenting on American occupation of Iceland.

WASHINGTON, July 8—

Official Washington waited somewhat tensely today for Chancellor Hitler's next move, now that President Roosevelt actually has planted the Stars and Stripes within the European war zone, directly challenged Germany, and ordered the American navy to take "all necessary steps" to free both the North and South Atlantic of further "hostile activities." Dramatic occupation of Iceland by the Navy, coupled with dispatch of "substantial forces" to the lately U. S. acquired British bases of Trinidad and British Guiana, in the main met with congressional approval.

Senate non-interventionists led by Wheeler (D) Mont., Nye (R) N. D. and Johnson (R) Calif., however, predict that the President's action will bring the United States into World War II either by the front door or the back. Late this afternoon, Mr. Roosevelt is due to hold his customary Tuesday press conference. Prior to that time, the White House would say only that his surprise message to Congress "speaks for itself."

Presidential subordinates are leaving it up to the "boss" himself to say whether or not the June 30 plea of Secretary of the Navy Knox that "the time for the Navy to clear the Atlantic of the German menace is now" had been answered.

Idea Not New One

Close examination of the July 1 exchange between President Roosevelt and Icelandic Prime Minister Hermann Jonasson discloses that Washington and London had been debating the idea of a United States protectorate over Iceland since before June 24. This exchange further reveals that the British wanted to move out of Iceland because their forces are required elsewhere.

Italians Irked

ROME, July 8—An official Italian statement today criticized American naval occupation of Iceland as a "violation of President Roosevelt's promises to remain within the limits of measures short of war and to refrain from sending troops outside the Western Hemisphere."

Real purpose of the American occupation, a foreign office spokesman said, is to create a "vast sea zone for delivery of supplies to England."

"This constitutes outright American intervention in European waters," the spokesman said.

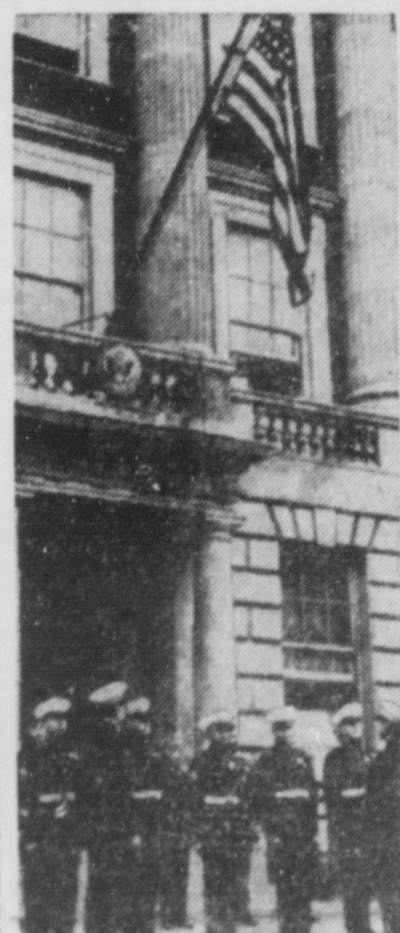

New 'Gibraltar'

WASHINGTON, July 8—Military quarters disclosed today that United States plans call for development of Iceland into the "Gibraltar of the North Atlantic."

Buttressing America's toe-hold in Greenland, President Roosevelt's further step toward the British Isles will aid the Atlantic neutrality patrol in protecting lease-lend shipping to the furthermost longitudes of the Western Hemisphere.

WASHINGTON, July 8 — Rep. Stephen Bolles (R) Wis., and a veteran newspaperman, died at his Washington home today from a heart attack following an illness of several days. Bolles, who was editor of the Janesville, Wis., Gazette for a score of years, was serving his second term in congress.

During his long newspaper career, Bolles covered many of the big stories in the nation. He was an eyewitness to the assassination of President William McKinley at Buffalo.

In congress Bolles vigorously fought for protection of Wisconsin agricultural interests, frequently clashing with the administration over its policies affecting the dairy industry.

A.E.F. Needed To Whip Hitler, Says New Chief Of Middle-East Forces

CAIRO, July 8—Only with the aid of an American expeditionary force can Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler be defeated, finally and totally, on his own soil, Great Britain's new commander-in-chief in the middle east held today.

In his first interview with the press, General Sir Claude Auchinleck, who recently succeeded General Sir Archibald P. Wavell as head of the British forces in the Mediterranean area, was frank in predicting how far the United States must go if Hitlerism is to be brought to an end.

"This war must be won on German soil," he said.

"Therefore I see as much need for American manpower in this war as in the last.

"If this war is to be won properly—and it is not to be won unless it is won properly, with no armistice—it has got to be won in Europe. And in Germany. The Germans must be beaten on their own soil, just the way Napoleon was beaten. If this is the way it is to turn out, we certainly are going to need American manpower."

HOLLYWOOD, July 8—Hollywood was planning today to give Billy Conn a warm reception when the fighter and his bride arrive next week for a fling at picture work.

The young heavyweight who put up such a gallant stand against Joe Louis recently has been signed by Republic Studios to play the lead in "Kid Tinsel," an Octavus Roy Cohen fight story. Reports were going around the studio that Billy's wife also may be given screen tests to see whether she might not play in Billy's picture.

EARTH SLIDES, MENACES TOWN

Six Houses Crushed At Mine Scene; Others May Be Saved

ST. CHARLES, Va., July 8 — Six houses were crushed and others were threatened today by a huge slide of earth moving slowly into a hollow on Little Black Mountain, near mining operations conducted by the Blue Diamond Company.

Pressure from piled-up waste slate was said to have loosened an area of earth 50 feet wide and as much as 15 feet deep. It had moved approximately 2,000 feet today, after starting late yesterday. The crushed houses were vacated, and no one was injured.

Approximately 50 houses were located in the hollow into which the slide moved, but it was expected most of them would escape damage. The Blue Diamond Company employs 4,000 mine workers on the mountain, but only homes in the one hollow were menaced.

Nearly a week of rains softened the earth of the slide.

Heavy Bombers, Fighters Swarm Over Channel In New Attack

SOUTHAMPTON AREA HIT

Ruhr, Rhineland, Lowland Areas Feel Brunt Of All-Out Assault

LONDON, July 8—Heavy British bombers, escorted by swarms of RAF fighters, delivered another slashing attack against Nazi-occupied France today after hammering western Germany and the "invasion coast" during the night. In the newest daylight attack, it was stated, the British planes successfully bombed a synthetic oil plant between Lens and Bethune and destroyed seven enemy fighting planes in aerial combats.

Five British fighters and one bomber were reported missing, but two British pilots were said to be safe.

Last night and early this morning the RAF rained bombs on western Germany, the "invasion coast" and other sections of occupied France.

The RAF night attacks coincided with a sharp German raid on Southampton during which waves of Nazi planes dropped bombs on all sections of the south coast seaport, causing a number of casualties and widespread destruction. Scores were left homeless as their houses were reduced to rubble.

Describing the British attacks, the Air Ministry communique said: "Large numbers of RAF planes (Continued on Page Two)

CRAZED BANDITS TERRORIZE TWO, ESCAPE IN WEST

STOCKTON, Cal., July 8—Search spread throughout three western states today for two heavily-armed bandits, one of them identified as a paroled convict, who kidnapped and terrorized a young Oakland couple on a wild 80-mile ride.

The gunmen, believed to be crazed with marihuana, and bragging of the crimes they had committed, fled in a stolen car after leaving their victims tied up in a cemetery near Stockton.

Highway patrolmen and police were scouring roads throughout California, Oregon and Nevada today, as almost 24 hours passed without trace of the fugitives or the stolen car.

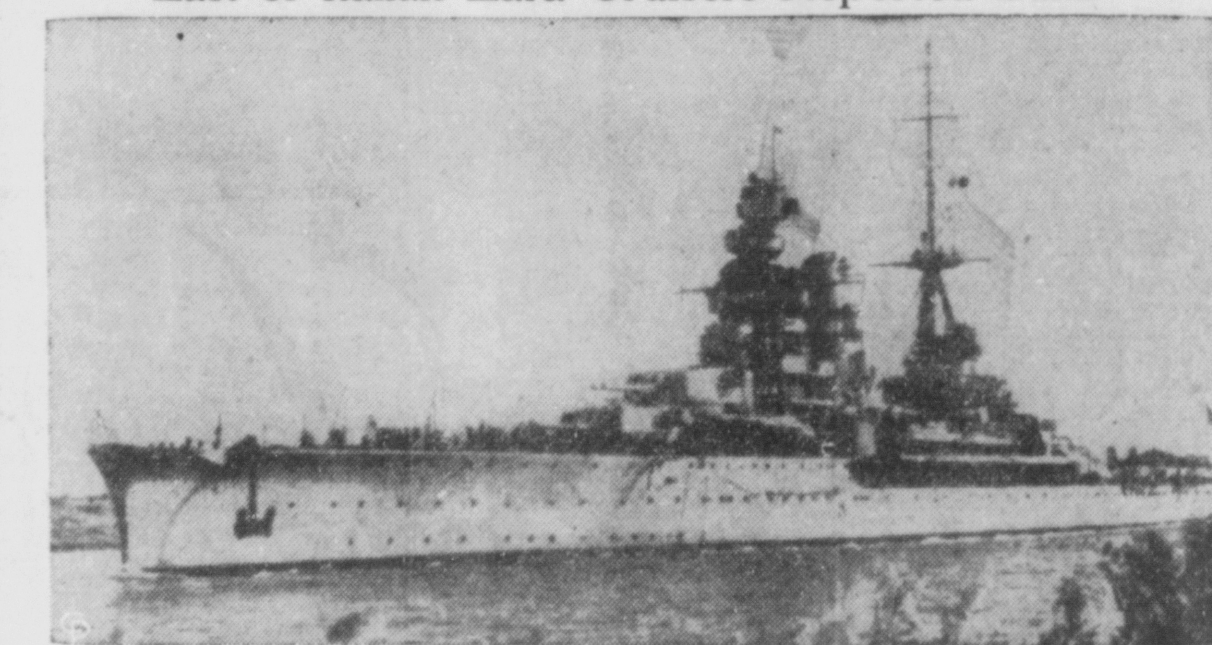

One of the men was identified from Rogue's Gallery photos as Carl Westover, 21, recently paroled from San Quentin and wanted in Stockton and Los Angeles for kidnapping, robbery and grand theft.

The victims were Katherine Dietz, 21, and Paul Ashbrook, 21. After a wild ride to Stockton, they left the couple near Stockton, robbing them of $45.

CINCINNATI, July 8—Ending the longest court case in Cincinnati's history, U. S. District Judge Robert R. Nevins today awarded Henry L. Doherty & Co., of New York, a judgment of $526,645 from the Fifth-Third Union Trust Company. The award includes $498,364 as a general claim against the Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust Co., of which the Fifth-Third is successor, plus interest.

The three sister ships of the Gorizia, Zara, Fiume and Pola, were reported sunk in the Battle of Matapan.

STORM KILLS FOUR RESIDENTS OF OHIO

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
Three persons were killed by lightning, one was drowned, and several were injured as damage today mounted high in the thousands of dollars in the wake of a brief but violent wind and thunderstorm that swept into Ohio from the northwest, tumbling the mercury almost 20 degrees in about as many minutes.

Daniel Nemesch, 54, of Cleveland, was drowned when the scow of the American Shipbuilding Co. he was on was upset in the Cuyahoga River by the high wind. John Toth, who was with Nemesch, saved himself by swimming to shore.

The lightning victims were Pvt. Richard H. Haynes, 26, a selectee from Barborton, O. who was struck while on the Erie Proving grounds near Clinton by a bolt which injured two others; Emory R. Taylor, 55, a WPA worker at the Toledo municipal airport, and Claude V. Adams, 51, killed when lightning struck his barn near Cambridge.

Lightning also struck the home of Joe Miller, farmer of near Gallopis, and the resulting fire destroyed the structure. Miller and his family were vacationing in Michigan.

Wind Strong One

The storm and its accompanying downpour swept into Ohio from the northwest on the wings of a 50-mile-an-hour wind that ripped its way diagonally across Ohio.

Near Troy the barn of V. E. Neal crashed to the ground under the buffeting of the gale, killing 21 and injuring 35 prize cows trapped in the building. Neal's home, a Troy showplace, also was damaged severely. Damage on the one farm alone was estimated in excess of $10,000. Other buildings in the vicinity were razed, and road, electric and telephone crews worked through the night cleaning up the debris of poles and trees swept down.

Stores Of City Start Summer Closing Plan

Beginning Wednesday noon and continuing each Wednesday during July and August, thirty-five Circleville merchants will close their stores for the rest of the day.

Stores will close at 12 noon each Wednesday. I. W. Kinsey, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday that practically every member of the Retail Merchants' Division had agreed to cooperate with the closing program.

"Closing the stores at noon on Wednesday will enable store employees to get a little rest during the vacation season when many of the merchants are short of help," President Kinsey said.

Merchants believe the closing program will not substantially reduce their week's proceeds, since closing on Wednesday afternoons should be reflected in better business on other days of the week.

BRITISH BLAST SYNTHETIC OIL PLANT IN REICH

Heavy Bombers, Fighters Swarm Over Channel In New Attack

Invaded western Germany last night. The main objectives were Cologne, Osnabruck, Munster, Gladbach, Frankfurt and Munster. At each city a large force did widespread damage.

Great Fires Observed

"The attack was highly successful and great fires were left burning. Factory buildings and warehouses were seen to collapse. Important railway junctions were hit repeatedly.

"Elsewhere in the Ruhr and Rhineland other targets were attacked especially Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Krefeld.

"Lighter attacks were made on the docks at Ostend, Dunkirk, Boulogne and Denheider and on oil stores at Amsterdam."

In the Reich itself, British planes heavily bombed the industrial cities of Cologne, Osnabruck, Munster and Frankfurt as well as other points.

(Editor's Note: A Berlin announcement said British planes dropped bombs on various places in northern and western Germany, causing slight property damage and killing a number of civilians.)

The stupendous RAF attacks on Nazi targets were carried out while German raiders levelled a short but sharp attack on Southampton.

The RAF attack on the "invasion coast" was a terrific one and lasted from midnight to dawn.

Roar Heard In Channel

During these hours residents of the southeast English coast were kept awake by a continuous roar as the British bombers swarmed across the channel to France to punish German military installations.

Bomb explosions in the Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne areas shook the English coast alarmingly.

Daylight bombers and fighters once more took up the offensive, raining bombs on German targets in northern France while additional patrols scoured the channel area, hunting for Nazi Messerschmitts.

Wednesday will be the last day's work for 75 WPA men now stationed on construction projects in the county, WPA officials announced Tuesday.

Wednesday night, those men cut from the WPA roles by a statewide slash in WPA lists, will be given their pay and told not to report for work on Thursday morning.

Who will be dropped from the WPA roles will be determined by the financial needs of the workers, local officials said, with those needing employment worst remaining on the work lists. The cancellation will be made at state WPA headquarters.

The cut will leave 150 men still working on the county's road projects and County Engineer Henry McCrady has reported that the reduction should not cripple the projects to any great extent.

How many of those 75 men dropped from the WPA roles Wednesday can find employment, local officials did not say, although there is reported to be a definite shortage of farm labor in the county and many may find work in the harvest fields.

With completion of the grain harvest and the corn cutting season this fall, however, it may be necessary to place some of them on direct relief, Relief Director Delos Marcy has pointed out.

CONTINUED STRIFE ON FRONTIER IS REPORTED

QUITO, Ecuador, July 8—Continued fighting at several points along the Ecuadorian-Peruvian frontier, an attack on Huancabamba by at least 25 Peruvian planes and an assault of an Ecuadorian gunboat by a Peruvian dive-bomber were announced by the government today.

The gunboat was attacked off Hualtaco and one bomb exploded only 12 yards from the vessel before the attacking plane was driven off, the announcement said.

Boggs Says Program Being Marked By Confusion
Of Some Details

Wheat farmers who have exceeded 1941 AAA wheat allotments were reminded Tuesday by AAA Chairman John G. Boggs that no 1941 wheat can be sold or fed without first securing a wheat marketing card from the Pickaway County AAA Committee.

A lot of confusion exists concerning the penalty on excess wheat and the method of determining excess production. Any farmer, he explained, who has planted more than 15 acres of wheat and has exceeded an allotment of 10 acres or more has excess wheat which must be disposed of before a wheat marketing card can be secured.

Chairman Boggs cited the following example:

A farmer has an allotment of 16 acres. He planted 25 acres for harvest. His normal yield as determined by the county committee is 19 bushels an acre, and his actual yield is 25 bushels an acre. He has exceeded his allotment by 7 acres. The excess production therefore is 7 acres times the normal production (the normal or average production, whichever is smaller) of 19 bushels an acre or 133 bushels. The penalty on the excess production would amount to $65.17 which must be paid before any of the wheat on the remaining 16 acres or the allotment can be sold or fed.

May Store Excess

Chairman Boggs explained that the producer may delay payment of the penalty by storing the excess wheat and secure a loan at approximately 65 cents a bushel, or turn it over to the Secretary of Agriculture for relief purposes. When this is done, the farmer receives a marketing card permitting him to feed or sell the wheat produced on the acreage allotment. This is his marketing quota or free wheat in addition to any 1940 wheat in his possession and wheat produced above his normal yield on the excess acreage.

If any of the free wheat or excess wheat is sold without a marketing card, the penalty will be deducted by the buyer at the time the first bushel is marketed. A lien in favor of the U. S. Government is held on the entire crop of wheat until the penalty is paid or wheat is stored in an approved manner or given to the Secretary of Agriculture for relief purposes. Excess wheat cannot be destroyed, fed, or disposed of in any way other than the methods prescribed by the marketing quota law to avoid payment of the penalty.

Conducting Religious Rites

C. A. WILLIAMSON

MARK MAXEY

The Circleville Church of Christ under its minister, Mark G. Maxey, is currently conducting evangelistic meetings.

These meetings are being held in the Woodmen Hall above the First National Bank building at Court and Main Streets. The meetings began July 6 and will be held nightly except Saturday from 7:45 to 9:00 through July 25. The Woodmen Hall is well-ventilated and lighted and provides a comfortable meeting place.

These services feature singing and sound, scriptural sermons. Chester Williamson of Cincinnati, Ohio, speaking each night. He is ably assisted by his wife who is conducting a Bible Hour for children each day of the meeting.

Mark Maxey is conducting the song services with Mary Evelyn Miller of Hillsboro, Ohio, playing the piano.

A British foreign office spokesman declared:

"It is big news and welcome news. It is regarded here as one of the most important events for some time past."

(The official Berlin radio in a broadcast picked up by NBC said that a representative of Iceland stationed in London protested to United States Ambassador John G. Winant against occupation of Iceland by American naval forces. In his message to congress yesterday, President Roosevelt said Iceland had been occupied in agreement with Britain and with the consent of the Iceland government.)

The authoritative British Press Association said the British troops now in Iceland will be relieved by stages and that for a time both British and American forces will remain there. The Press Association added:

"It is clear the United States will maintain an adequate force necessary for full protection of Iceland."

British sources also stated that the American action "relieves us of commitments" in the Western Hemisphere at a time when "German aggression in the east is imposing fresh obligations on the government."

The Monday evening ball game was rained out. Wednesday evening the Margulis Wonders and Millport Cubs will be in action at the park diamond. One of these evenings, the girls' teams should be given the right of way for practice. The Sherm Hoover meat shop boys have taken charge of a new hall team, the Cloud Grocers having withdrawn from the league. We'll be naming, now soon, the individual members of all the six teams.

A number of the in camp soldier boys were home for over the Fourth. Among them were George Peters Jr., Henry Markley, William Sampson, Lee Sherman.

William Toole Jr., 16, who was operated for appendicitis at St. Anthony Hospital recently, is getting along "just fine" according to a report from there yesterday. He is the son of William and Mrs. Toole and assists his Dad about the electric shop.

WAR AFFECTS SHEEPSKINS STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Thousands of diplomas were handed to college students in June but the old sheepskin "ain't what it used to be," according to William S. Hoffman, Pennsylvania State College registrar. The color and quality of the 1941 crop of sheepskin was affected by the war, Hoffman said. This year the skins came from older sheep and were coarser in grade and the 1941 diplomas were slightly tinged with yellow.

HAUNTED HOUSE
Is it hot enough for you? Well, "Mr. District Attorney" is going to make you shiver with a haunted house mystery on Wednesday, July 16, at 8:30 p. m. "The Case of the Man in Black," a mysterious murderer, fills the town with fear until the D. A. finally tracks him down.

MARTIN PRESENTATION
Originally scheduled several weeks ago "Room Service," a hilarious farce which charmed Broadway and movie audiences, finally comes to radio via Charles Martin's "Great Moments From Great Plays," Friday, July 11, at 8 p. m. Martin promises an all-star cast. The story concerns a producer who tries to keep his company in a hotel room until he can find a backer. Facing eviction, he puts the playwright to bed and has one of the actors pose as a doctor to testify that the patient is too ill to be moved. The hotel management having played "angel" to the company up to this point, finally decides to back the play, which turns out to be a hit. Ray Block's 21-piece orchestra supplies the background music.

RADIO BRIEFS
John Reed King, co-star with Arlene Francis on "What's My Name?" on Sundays at 7 p. m., was graduated from Princeton where he played on the football

Reference to a theatrical curtain on radio is usually a myth, but not so with Phil Spitalny's "Hour of Charm." Studio where they do their stuff, actually has a curtain which is drawn together when the broadcast has ended. This is one program that never has the anti-climax of an exit scramble by musicians in full view of the audience.

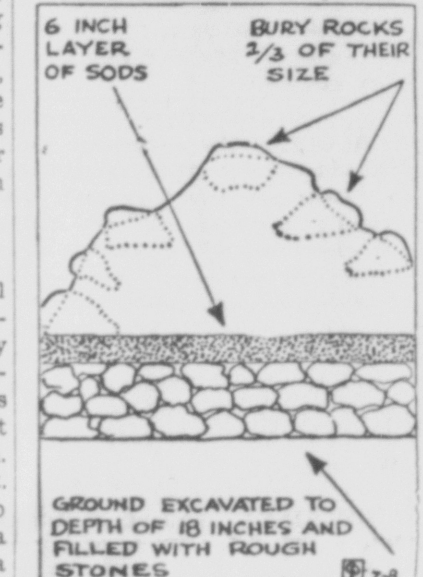

Advance sales of tickets for James Melton's concert at the Hollywood Bowl, opening the summer season there this month, indicate that it will be one of the biggest premiere crowds since the concert was inaugurated there. Melton's Monday night program will come from the west coast during that week.

Peter Van Steeden expects to use many of the musicians he's now batoning on "Mr. District Attorney" series for which he'll also supply music during the summer. The quiz show is heard at 9 p. m. Wednesdays and "Mr. D. A." follows immediately after on the same chain.

There's a possibility that Lyn Murray will be the bandleader on at least one of the "Forecast" programs. Several of the stars scheduled to appear on this experimental series have asked for original music by Murray and want him to direct for them.

Today's Garden-Graph

A successful rock garden, even though a small one, requires a truly naturalistic setting. The way to acquire this is by placing the rocks just as they appear in the woods on fields. A jumbled mass

How to build a rock garden
of stones without soil enough between the plant roots should be avoided. On the other hand, do not have the rock garden resemble a pudding with stones as raisins.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, it is most important that the rocks be buried at least one-half to two-thirds their size. This gives a feeling of security and permanency as well adding to the general appearance.

Rocks act as foils to silhouette the plants and they also serve to retain moisture and release minerals.

WITH LOCAL BOYS UNDER THE FLAG

Guardsmen Who Finish
Training Must Sign
Up For Draft

Men who have served in the active National Guard are required to register immediately on expiration of their service, even though they are not, under certain conditions, liable for further peacetime training and service under the Selective Service Act.

That fact was stressed Tuesday by Lieut. Col. C. W. Goble, Director of Selective Service for Ohio, who said that all such men should present themselves to a local board for registration immediately upon their discharge. "The act is specific," the Director said, "in requiring registration of men within the age group of 21 to 36 who have served in the National Guard. Men who were members of the active National Guard on October 16 last, and have completed six or more consecutive years, are relieved from liability for peacetime service and training, but they must register. Those who were members of the National Guard and have served less than six years are relieved neither from registration nor training."

The Director said, further, that his attention had been called to the fact that some men in the National Guard in federal service who have been discharged because of expiration of their service have not registered. They should do so immediately, he declared, and added that the War Department has now issued instructions that such men shall be notified by their organization commanders at the time of their discharge of the necessity to register.

William Stebelton, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Stebelton, 229 Watt Street, will return home from Fort Knox July 16th for a 12 day furlough.

Bert Richey of Fort Bragg, N. C., passed a three-day leave of absence during the week end with his father, Eugene Richey and family of West Mount Street.

Earl (Shorty) Inler will leave Circleville Sunday for Chicago to enter service at the Great Lakes Naval Training Base. Inler, who has been a naval reserve for some years, served from 1920 to 1922 and was mustered out with a first class fireman rating. He lives at 374 East Main Street.

Daniel Grubbs of South Washington Street who is vacationing from his job with the J. C. Penney Co. is spending his time in southern states, traveling to New Orleans, Gulfport and Vicksburg, Miss., is visiting his brother, Matthew, a resident of the latter city. He also went to Camp Shelby where he renewed acquaintance with numerous Circleville and Pickaway County soldiers.

CUSSINS AND FEARN CO. HAS ANNIVERSARY SALE

One reads everywhere about prices going higher. But it is news when you read about prices actually lower than last July on building supplies, roofing, paints, tires, batteries and many other things.

Cussins and Fearn, in staging its annual July Good-Will sale which starts Thursday, states that through contracts made months ago it has been able to bring the same standard merchandise at low levels that actually break records in 48 years of low prices.

In an effort to do their part to keep prices low, Cussins and Fearn buyers placed large orders months ago. The effects of their efforts are now being shown in the extra low prices offered during the 48th anniversary celebration.

Howard McKee, manager of the Circleville Cussins & Fearn store, said: "Naturally, these prices are good only while present stocks last. While the sale continues throughout July, many features are expected to sell quickly and we encourage our friends to buy early to avoid disappointment."

TAX NOTES

HOW would you like a little discount on your income and excess profits taxes? Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has announced an arrangement which makes that possible. Beginning August 1, he says, the treasury will offer through the banks two types of tax notes. Taxpayers may buy them periodically, say one a month, and later turn them back in payment of federal taxes.

One type of the notes will be in denominations of $25, $50 and $100. Purchasers will get an extra tax credit for every month between purchase date and tax-paying date. For example, the $100 note will be worth 16 cents a month for this purpose.

The other type of notes will run in larger sums for the big taxpayers. The treasury will pay four cents a month for every $100 of such notes.

This seems to be a good way to create a fund for paying taxes and save a little thereby.

WEDDING BOOM

JUNE, the big wedding month, had more than her quota this year. And evidently the war is responsible. Instead of deterring prospective brides and grooms from committing matrimony, the precarious situation seems to drive them to it. The same tendency is seen in Canada, where all matrimonial records have been broken lately.

This is a rather natural procedure. Engaged couples feel that life at best is uncertain in these times, and whatever life they may have together is so much to the good. There is the added consideration that women are self-supporting now to a far greater extent than they used to be, so that in most cases it may be assumed that they can take care of themselves if they have to, in the absence of their husbands.

STEEL CAVALRY

PICTURES of American cavalry divisions on parade, or in battle formation, thrill American hearts as usual. There is something about a horse! And there is much about a cavalry charge, whether bent on its stern business in battle or merely on exhibition.

But do many Americans suppose that those mounted troops and their valiant chargers will actually be used in modern warfare? It seems hardly possible, ex-

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

LATIN AMERICA probably will get the pick of the United States consular personnel which now is being fired out of the Axis-dominated part of Europe. Considering that there are nine of these countries whose Yankee consular staffs will be on the loose and that we have several consulates in each of them, it's obvious that the number of men seeking assignments will be considerable.

Some will get tours of duty in Washington, for the state department itself is undermined. However, it needs no such small army as will be available.

Most of our Latin American consulates, though, are undermanned, too. They'll be glad of additional help. They require, indeed, more of it than a few years ago, due to Pan-American activities, now accentuated by our urgent wartime desire for still closer trade relationships with our southern neighbors.

Our European-expelled consular contingent will have a big advantage over new men at the game, in that they've had plenty of training in advance. To be sure, not many of them will be familiar with Latin American local conditions or with the Spanish and Portuguese languages. The state department has, however, established a school for these chaps, in connection with the University of Chicago. Its course is of only a few months' duration, but it's tremendously intensive. By the time it's through with a student, already consularly well educated, he's qualified for almost any post.

I've a son-in-law of my own, a state department assistant for the past year, who's soon to start in on the Chicago grind. He doesn't need it as much as the average, having previously held down a vice consular job for several years in Argentina. He figures, though, that this Chicago post-graduate course will make him a super-past-master at the game.

CONSULS DON'T TRADE

It's true that consuls and vice consuls don't dabble in actual trade.

Business has to be developed by sure-enough businessmen, but our business concerns are sending their representatives to Latin America increasingly, every day, to attend to this part of the campaign.

We and the Latins also are exchanging college students. President O'Hara of Notre Dame university started that movement back in the 1920's. We've exchanged visiting delegations of army and navy officers and government officials likewise. Recently we've had a bunch of South American newspapermen here, getting acquainted with us and writing, while in our midst, for our Yankee publications. The other day I had a letter from a Detroit editor who's organizing a party of our own scribes to tour all the Americas—Mexico, Central, South and Insular.

The trouble with us, at both ends of the line, is that we don't visit one another's countries soon enough or stay long enough to assimilate our respective atmospheres—"cultures" is the technical term. It's necessary to LIVE among a people to get to KNOW 'em. I did, for a matter of years, among the Argentines, and I think they liked me pretty well, as I did them, because we understood each other.

Lately I had a call from John White, a New York City correspondent in Buenos Aires for hard onto three decades—today's best-posted North American newspaperman on the southern continent, I think.

BUNGLED EFFORT

John's verdict is that a deal of our Pan-American effort is bungled. I know what he means. Our business representatives are too abrupt and unceremonious. The Latins call for affability. We've got exceptions. But generally we set the Latins' teeth on edge by our unceremoniousness.

But, gosh! At last we're TRYING—which we didn't attempt for a long while after the last war.

What OUR businessmen and others need is an experienced, long locally residential bunch of their fellow countrymen, to absorb 'em as they arrive, and teach 'em how to behave.

That's the stunt for a competent Yankee diplomatic and consular service. Maybe the right kind of consular agents is more important than our ambassadors and their attaches, for our embassies are concentrated, whereas consulates are scattered hither and yon, and more approachable, too.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

ARMY RUNNING "AIRLINE"

WASHINGTON—Thanks to its potent lobby, Pan-American Airways recently succeeded in blocking the establishment of a competing airline across the Atlantic. The White House, State Department, Army and Navy wanted the second service, but Pan-Am had more influence with a majority of the U. S. Senate.

No announcement has been made about it, but today there is another competing airline across the Atlantic. It is operated by the U. S. Army Air Corps, and was established because of Pan-Am's inability to meet the war-booming demand for transatlantic service.

Using four-motor heavy bombers, the planes carry only officials and official pouches to and from England. Ambassador Winant returned to London by this means.

The American "port" of this new airline is the Army's great air base at Bolling Field, Va. The service is under the direction of Colonel Robert Olds, ace Air Corps commander, who was recently put in charge of ferrying Lend-Lease bombers from the West Coast airplane plants to Britain. The new airline operates as part of that service.

At present two bombers are in use, and more are expected to be added. The planes are manned by Air Corps crews and operate on closely-guarded schedules and over a secret route.

"HIS MAJESTY'S SHIP"

Serious-minded Lord Halifax, British Ambassador, has his lighter moments. The other day he entertained friends at the State Department with this story:

A sailor from a visiting British warship was wandering around Boston. A woman stopped him and asked the meaning of the letters "H. M. S." on his hat.

He replied, "H'I Mustn't Say."

DEFENSE RAIL BOSS

OPM chiefs aren't admitting it, but they want the President to replace Ralph Budd, Burlington Railroad executive, as Defense Rail Director.

Number 1 choice as his successor is Joseph B. Eastman, veteran chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission and one of the greatest transportation experts in the country.

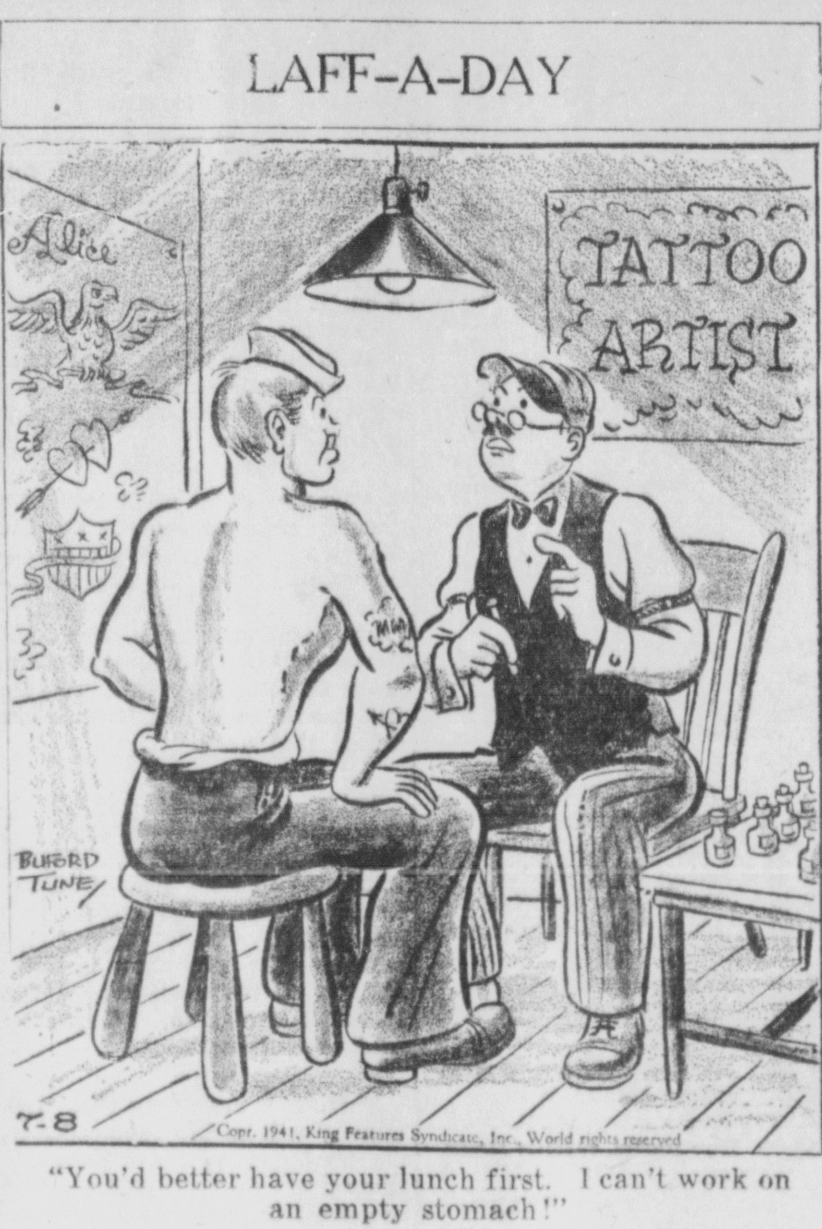

Budd has been under fire in Defense circles because of alleged failure to get the railroads to undertake a big freight cept for work in open plains and on frontier errands.

Cavalry for war business is nearly all mechanized now, except for use in large, open countries like Russia, where horses may still serve to carry fighting men and drag guns. Even there, modern and heavily armed and armored tanks that can go swiftly and hit hard are the shock-units of war. They have been the main dependence of the conquering Nazis on all fronts. And up-to-date experts say that such mechanized units are what we ourselves need most.

Care of Baby's First Permanent Tooth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Yesterday I discussed the new ideas of modern dentistry on the care of the temporary teeth. It is known now that they should be watched and cared for as regularly as the permanent teeth, because the health and proper position in the mouth of the permanent teeth may depend on the health and eruption of the temporary teeth.

"They are only baby teeth—don't bother with them"—this is a saying that should be outmoded and discarded.

But by all odds the most important tooth of childhood is the one that comes in during about the fifth or sixth year.

The sixth year tooth is not a baby tooth but the first permanent tooth!

And therein lies its importance. It is usually regarded as a temporary tooth, by the parents. And if it begins to show decay, it all too often is neglected on those grounds. The decay is allowed to go on, the tooth is lost and the whole firmness of the arch of the mouth is lost forever, leading to a weak adult arch and the subsequent sacrifice of many teeth that would not have needed to be sacrificed if this precaution had been observed.

Twenty Temporary Teeth

The temporary teeth are twenty in number. If you divide each upper and lower jaw into halves, there are five milk teeth in each half of each upper and each lower jaw. The first to come in are the central incisors, upper and lower, two in each jaw, then beside them, the lateral incisors, then a space is skipped and the first molars come in, then the cuspids between the lateral incisors and the first molars, then the second molars.

The time table is:

Central incisors between 5th and 8th months.

Lateral incisors between 7th and 10th months.

First molars between 12th and 16th months.

Cuspids between 14th and 20th months.

Second molars between 20th and 30th months.

The lower teeth generally precede the upper by a few weeks.

There is, of course, variation in this and it may be the third or fourth year before all the temporary, or milk, teeth are in.

First Permanent Tooth

And so fast does time go at this interesting period of life, that the parents may not realize when the first permanent tooth comes in behind the last of the temporary, at the fifth or sixth year. Another fact that may cause confusion and false thinking is that the first permanent tooth does not force any temporary tooth out, but comes in a clear space.

Parents should keep a time table of the temporary teeth where they can refer to it. Count the teeth from the midline. The sixth that comes in is the first permanent tooth. For heaven's sake, for everybody's sake, take care of that tooth.

It is especially soft and liable to decay. If any decay starts, have it treated immediately. To lose that tooth in upper or lower jaw may be to wreck a mouth for life.

CHAPTER FORTY

HENRY WAS surprised to note that it was 9 o'clock as he ate his breakfast in preparation to go to the special meeting of the model railroad club. He had never breakfasted as late before in his life—but then, he had never before been in as poor condition. He felt that except for his face he must be black and blue all over.

"I've ordered a taxi to come out from the village and get us," Jones explained as Henry started on his last pancake. "I've got to get you to Wildwood lodge without the chance of anyone seeing you. You can lie on the floor."

Henry groaned inwardly.

"Of course the taxi driver will have to be in on the deception," Jones continued. "We don't know who in the village may be a friend and accomplice of the murderer, so to be on the safe side we'll keep the taxi driver at the lodge until after the meeting starts."

"Goodness!" gasped Mrs. Potter, dropping a kettle on the stove, "you don't think a taxi driver would help the murderer, do you?"

Jones shrugged. "I hear a car outside now. Must be our transportation. Ready, Henry?"

The little clerk swallowed the last of his coffee. "Ready." And he had thought he would be running the show!

Jones opened the door to make sure there was no one in sight but the cab driver. He tucked the model locomotive under his arm. "Follow me quickly."

Henry felt silly taking a taxi in broad daylight for a half mile ride. Pete Simmons, the driver, grinned, but Henry couldn't grin back.

Pete's grin vanished when his smaller fare sat on the floor. Jones offered no explanation. Pete's mouth dropped open as he stood holding the door. He shut the door in a hurry and climbed into his seat. He drove like mad. Henry didn't protest. The ride was painful, but it was short.

"We'd like you to wait here," announced Jones when the cab slid to a stop on the gravelled drive of the deserted lodge.

"But, gee! Maybe there's business waitin' in the village. I . . ."

Jones pulled a five-dollar bill from his pocket.

"Oh, that's different!" said Pete. "Come inside and wait," Jones directed.

Pete looked askance at Henry as the three of them climbed out of the cab. When Henry did not offer to walk on his hands, the driver's suspicions seemed to relax. He turned his nervous gaze instead on the huge ruins of the building.

"Gosh, what a joint!"

"Never been here before?" Jones inquired in surprise.

"Sure, but it was classy then. Look at it now. Windows broken, paint peeling, porch sagging, vines growing over the walls. No wonder old man Ives got bumped off here!"

"What do you mean by that? Why should anyone—bump him off—here?"

"I dunno why. But if someone was goin' to shoot him, this would be the place to do it, wouldn't it?"

"Theatrical, eh?" Jones looked thoughtfully at Henry. "May be something to think about. The killing of Ives certainly was staged. Henry was impatient. "Why keep guessing about it when in a few minutes we'll have the murderer!"

The eyes of the taxi driver popped wide. "What's that?"

"Never mind," snapped Jones. "Oh—of, of course not!" agreed Pete. He rubbed his hands. "Well, here we are. What are we waiting for? Let's go in—and meet the murderer!"

They stepped down to the basement door. It opened inward before Jones touched the handle. Sheriff McBride welcomed them in.

"How come?" inquired Jones. "One day the chief of police is in charge. Next day the sheriff takes over."

McBride grinned. "He really isn't chief of police. The village isn't incorporated. When things get too tough for him I take charge."

"Informal," observed Jones. "The constable is a chief. His deputies are lieutenants and sergeants and captains. However, I suppose it adds atmosphere to village life and really doesn't matter as long as the criminal is captured—if he is captured."

"Gosh!" whispered Pete, wandering on into the depths of the big room with its miniature landscapes and tracks and trains.

Henry's mouth twisted. "You wasted five dollars paying that taxi driver to stay here. You should have charged admission."

Jones ignored the comment. To the sheriff he announced, "Members of the model railroad club should begin arriving in a few minutes. Mr. Potter will open the door for them. You can stand behind him in the shadows and spot the one who seems most startled to see him. I suppose you have plenty of men on hand in case there is trouble."

The sheriff nodded. "I'll handle this, Mr. Jones. If you please. That's about the way I'd figure to do it. I've got men spotted all around the building in case the fellow tries to make a getaway. Mr. Potter, it all depends on you."

Henry took a deep breath. He glanced sideways at Jones. "I'm glad I am at last going to be of real help. Sorry I didn't recognize the fellow last night."

"You know it was a man, though?"

"Yes. I'm sure of that. It was no woman at the top of that well!"

"Good. That narrows our hunt. We know that Ives was killed by one of seven men in the building Wednesday night. Let's see! They were Stanley King, Louis Spinelli, Laurence Harkness, Professor Bisbee, Hans Svenson, yourself and, and . . . who was the seventh?"

"There was no one else but Ives."

"Right. Well, Ives and Bisbee are out of the way." He said it without emotion. "That leaves four men besides yourself. Only four. That ought to be easy."

"In case they fail to respond to the test," Jones added, "I have another test here I propose to try." He patted the locomotive under his arm.

The sheriff sniffed. "What gives you the idea that toy can prove anything?"

"Because the peculiar operation of a locomotive on this miniature railroad was in some way linked with the killing of John Ives."

"We won't need to try your test, whatever it is," said Henry. "My test can't fail."

"It had better not," the sheriff told him. "If it does, you are our most likely suspect, Henry."

"What?" Henry stepped back as though someone had struck him across the face.

"You've gone to great pains to build up a case with us against one of four men," the sheriff explained. "You've also made it clear that unless they react as you predict, they are innocent. I hope it clears up the mystery, Henry, for your sake."

"I've gone to great pains? My Lord! Don't you believe me?"

"Hush!" warned Jones. "Shut the door, Sheriff. Laurence Harkness is walking up the drive."

THE WAGE SPIRAL

Labor leaders justify their wage program—with or without strikes—on the ground that the cost of living is rising. It is rising, and to the extent of the rise it is a fair argument. But the cost of living is not rising nearly as fast as hourly wage scales. To the extent of the difference, wage increases are not only a species of "patriotizing," but make inflation inevitable.

If the vicious spirals of former wars are to be avoided with all their train of suffering, we'll have either self-restraint—or Fascist restraint. During the Napoleonic wars prices rose 45 percent; during the Civil War they rose 120 percent (more than doubled) and during World War I they jumped 127 percent. The social unrest that would accompany similar price rises today would do us more damage than Hitler.

When he was assistant Secretary of the Navy in 1917-18, Mr. Roosevelt hitched wages to the cost of living in the navy yards. The basic justice of this policy in emergency times is apparent. If the cost of living went up two percent, wages would be due to be advanced in proportion. The worker would feel fairly treated. But because this policy would prevent wages going up faster than living costs, the taxpayers and soldiers would feel no one was profiteering behind the lines. The effect on national morale would be immense.

From time to time the government releases figures on the cost of living, but no correlation is made of average hour scales or weekly earnings. This is a mistake. The two should go out together. Then the impression made by strike agitators on union workers that they are being exploited might be corrected.

As Professor Irving Fisher says in "Stable Money," "to meet the constant demands for higher wages and to settle numerous strikes, the National War Labor Board made wide use of the cost of living index. The Ship Building Labor Adjustment Board, then under the jurisdiction of Franklin D. Roosevelt also recognized the use of index numbers and adopted a plan of half yearly adjustments in shipbuilding centers using the cost of living index of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics."

The previous peak of national prosperity was 1929. In that year more persons were employed; national income was greater; and the total going to wage earners was greater than ever before in our history. It is fair, therefore, to use 1929 as par, or 100.

In 1929 average hourly factory earnings, according to the National Industrial Conference Board, were 59 cents per hour. In April 1941, the last month for which I have authentic figures, the figure was 78.4 cents per hour.

This is an increase of 32.9 percent an hour over the best previous year in our industrial history. If the cost of living had also risen in proportion the worker today would be as well off, but no better off, than in 1929. Yet the cost of living has not gone up equally but is actually less than in 1929. In April 1941, it was only 86.8 as against 100 in 1929.

We come then to "real wages," or what the money in the pay envelope will buy. Here the hourly rate is not a fair measure to the worker because he works fewer hours a week. This, however, he partly brought on himself because organized labor promoted the Wage Hour Law which penalizes the employer for time and a half if he works his men more than 40 hours a week.

So we go to average weekly factory earnings. Working seven

QUESTION: We have several hundred white madonna lilies that are blooming now. Last season and this the stocks began to fire and by blooming time the buds turned black and only one or two lilies opened on each stalk. We have been told by some that it is caused by a blight of some kind and that the bulbs should be treated with bordeaux mixture or powdered sulfur when reset in the fall. Others think it is over-cultivation, the bulbs being so tender and easily damaged. Mrs. J. R. H., Westville.

ANSWER: Madonna lilies and some other lilies are very susceptible to attacks of the botrytis blight. This usually attacks them only during wet weather. It is not due to over-cultivation but caused by a specific fungus disease that develops easiest and best during wet weather. I suggest that you spray them now with bordeaux mixture once a week although in most cases it will be too late to be of any value. Next spring before the new growth starts cut off all the leaves that developed during the fall and burn them. Then cover the ground with one inch of new soil to try to prevent the spores of the fungus from being splashed up on the foliage. This should considerably reduce the amount of disease even if a wet season develops. Treating the bulbs with sulfur or bordeaux mixture, contrary to what you read in most books, is in the opinion of the plant pathologists working with this disease, of no value whatsoever. If you are particularly interested in lilies may I suggest that you secure a copy of the American Horticultural Society's lily yearbook. You will also find the latest up-to-date information

QUESTION: I have read your bulletin on lawns and found it helpful. The dandelions that collect in masses so that it is hard to tell the individual plants that get among the grass bother me most. My grass is a mixed variety. Are weeds harmful to any kind of grass? S. E. P., Columbus.

ANSWER: Weeds are harmful to the grass in the lawn only if they become sufficiently thick to crowd out the grass. Usually, weeds are present because there has not been adequate or sufficient soil preparation in advance to enable the grass to grow sufficiently heavy to compete with the weeds. This, together with lack of at least once a year's fertilization with a complete commercial fertilizer, gives the weeds an opportunity to grow at the expense of the grass. There is no substitute for properly preparing poor soil before the lawn is started by incorporating humus in the form of peat moss, rotted leaves, or similar material, plus regular fertilization. Weeds can be controlled only by consistent and persistent effort. It is surprising how many weeds may be removed by spending five minutes a day on your lawn. This, followed by fertilization with a complete commercial fertilizer such as 4-12-4, will stimulate the grass to cover the bare spots and if your soil is not subsoil out of the cellar should enable you to have, in time, a weed-free lawn.

QUESTION: What is the name of the white iris with the yellow blotch on the lower petals? It is blooming now in the northern half of Ohio.

ANSWER: You have probably seen one of the wild iris that is sold under the name of Ochroleuca. It is very common in gardens, being hardy and extremely free blooming. It is particularly desirable because it blooms two or three weeks after the ordinary tall bearded iris have finished.

QUESTION: Do coffee grounds have any fertilizer value? F. D., Salineville.

ANSWER: Coffee grounds value although if you had enough of them you could use them for mulching, the same as you would sawdust, peat moss, or rotted leaves.

QUESTION: Are there different kinds of purple fringe trees? I have one that tries to smoke and can't. Does it have to be several years old, say about 10, before it smokes?

ANSWER: The purple fringe tree or smoke bush, which by the way is one of the sumacs, varies considerably in its bloom. Some bloom when they are quite young, others seem to take quite a few years before blooming. I know of no way to hasten the bloom.

BAER NEXT FOE FOR BILLY CONN IN GOTHAM RING

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, July 8—Billy Conn, boxing's best looking and most recent bridegroom, will get back to the rather sordid business of making a living with his fists in October and his parental pugilistic guardian, Promoter Mike Jacobs, wants him to fight none other than that bon vivant, raconteur and perennial ring juvenile, Maxmillan Adelbert Baer. Conn and his manager, Johnny Ray, conferred with Promoter Jacobs about the match today but it will not be closed until Baer and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, arrive next week.

IMPROVED PLAY IN JUNE CAUSES NEW RED HOPE

CINCINNATI, July 8—There is a wave of optimism in the camp of the Cincinnati Reds. They were encouraged by the June figures, which revealed they played the best ball in the National League during that month, and they feel they are in position to do still better from here on in.

Thursday they start their third eastern trip, at Brooklyn. Three straight games will be played in Flatbush, then the club will tour to Boston, New York, and Philadelphia before returning to their own balliwick. This is a mighty important trip to the Reds, for if they can emerge from it at least no worse than they start, or can pick up a bit of ground, they will be in position to stage a drive, for the schedule is very much in their favor from that point on.

Principal encouragement comes from the increase in the club's batting averages. Jimmy Gleeson, Mike McCormick and Lloyd Waner, who have been patrolling the outfield regularly of late, have begun to hit like outfielders are supposed to, and this upswing has enhanced the general outlook. A good hitting outfield, plus what other strength the club has to go with its marvelous pitching, is all the club needs to cause a National League commotion.

Don't ever get the idea that the contending clubs don't fear the Reds. They do, and a surge on their part would strike fear in the hearts of the Dodgers, Cardinals, and Giants.

The Reds' next home stand will start with a ladies' day game Tuesday, July 22, against the Brooklyn Dodgers. A night game will be played the following evening. Seventeen games in all will be played at Crosley Field during that home stand.

'BEANED' CLUB SWINGER TAKES SPOT IN P. G. A.

By Harold Heroux
CHERRY HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, DENVER, July 8—This is the story about a baseball player who "got beaned" by a fast ball, and the efforts of his brother to stop him from being gun-shy.
The brother's efforts failed. So, the "beaned" player decided to take up another sport. He picked golf—and at this writing, he is the "man of the hour" in the current National P.G.A. championship tournament at Cherry Hills.

He who got "beaned" was Harry Bassler, now 31 years old but quite a baseball star when he went to high school at Santa Monica, Cal. He is now a golf pro at Los Altos, which is a couple of brassie shots from San Francisco.

The brother who hated to see little Harry give up baseball was Johnny Bassler, once a leading name in Major Leagues. He is now coach of the Hollywood Club of the Pacific Coast League.

"After I got 'beaned,' Johnny used to stand all day and pitch cotton balls at me, trying to stop me from being scared at the plate," explained the 155-pound golfer. "But I even ducked from the cotton balls. So, I gave up baseball for golf."

Harry Bassler, who stands only 5 feet 6 1/2 inches tall, is the P.G.A.'s "man of the hour" because he is the 50-to-1 shot who tied for the lead with another outsider, E. J. "Dutch" Harrison of Chicago, at the half-way mark in the 36-hole qualifying round.

Both Bassler and Harrison reeled off three-under-par rounds of 68 during the first eighteen holes. Right smack behind them was "Slamming Sam" Snead of Hot Springs, runner-up for the P.G.A. title last year, who carded a 69.

Only five players cracked par during the initial eighteen. The others, besides Bassler, Harrison

RED BIRDS PUT 13 TO 3 THUMP ON MILLER NINE

COLUMBUS, July 8—It becomes increasingly difficult to determine whether the American Association, cradle of big league talent, is doing the better job this season of developing hitting or hurling.
On the hitting side of the ledger there are two of yesterday's games where powerhouse attacks completely overwhelmed the opposition—Columbus' 16-hit, 13 to 3 win over the league-leading Minneapolis Brewers, and Louisville's 13-hit, 9 to 3 victory over Milwaukee.

For those who like hurlers' battles, there were two 2 to 1 games—Toledo over St. Paul and Indianapolis over Kansas City.
The Columbus win over the Brewers perhaps was most significant cutting at it did the loop leaders' margin to a single game over Louisville, and bringing the Birds themselves to a point only two games off the pace. Although the season is hovering around the 80-game mark, there are only three games difference between first and fourth place.

Louisville was trailing 3 to 1 going into the last of the lucky seventh, when they laid down a seven-run barrage that nearly swept the last-place Brewers out of the ball park. A three-run homer by Junie Andres featured the attack.

Indianapolis gained its victory over the Blues by making the most of its hits. Each side garnered six bingles, with Logan getting credit for the win and Wensloff being charged with the loss.

Toledo was outthit decisively, nine to six, but Wirkkala scattered his safeties in better fashion to gain the hurling win over St. Paul's Smith.

FELLER, WYATT TO TAKE MOUND IN 'STAR' FRAY

Slugging Advantage May Give American League Outfit An Edge

By Russell Fuller
DETROIT, July 8—With earlier threats of rain apparently dispelled, the baseball aces of the land lined up today for the ninth annual Major League all star game in Briggs Stadium beginning at 1:30 p. m.

While there was some light rain during the night, the weatherman insisted the day would be only partly cloudy and cool. As a matter of fact, the sun came up brightly, eliminating belief a postponement to tomorrow would be necessary.

Bobby Feller, Cleveland's 23-year-old fireball artist who has won 16 and lost four games this year was the starting mound choice for the American League aggregation. His National League opponent was to be Brooklyn's Whitlow Wyatt who has copped 13 games and dropped four this season. Both men are right handers.

Manager Del Baker of the American League made a last minute switch in his lineup, announcing that Bobby Doerr, of Boston, would start at second base, instead of Joe Gordon, New York. Baker, also, made slight revisions in his batting order. Manager Bill McKechnie of the National League stood pat on his initial lineup as it was announced yesterday.

The lineups, still subject to last minute changes, are:

YANK STAR NOT SO TERRIFIC IN CHARITY GAMES

DETROIT, July 8—Joe DiMaggio, centerfielder for the New York Yankees who has established an all time hitting streak by punching out safe blows in 48 consecutive games, has not fared so well in all-star games, a glance at the records revealed today.
Joe, who will start in today's ninth annual Major League all star tussle in Briggs Stadium, has made only three hits in 21 times at bat in the five all star games in which he has appeared.

Observers were agreed, incidentally, that if Joe goes hitless today it will not affect his consecutive hitting streak which still stands unbroken. Only regularly scheduled league games are counted in official averages.

DAVIS, CLOUTED BY FRITZ ZIVIC, IS IN HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, July 8—Still suffering injuries sustained in last Wednesday night's fight with Fritz Zivic, world's welterweight boxing champion, Al (Bummy) Davis entered Kings County Hospital early today.
Davis, who was knocked out in the 10th round after receiving a sound pummeling from the first bell, immediately was put to bed in one of the receiving wards. Doctors said his condition was fair and that he would remain at least for the day pending diagnosis and treatment.

Names Of 19 Candidates, Special Levy On Ballot

Election Board Receives Forms From State; To Be Printed Soon

Board of elections officials Tuesday received primary ballot forms from state election headquarters and announced that local ballots would be prepared immediately and probably would go to the printer sometime next week.

City ballots will contain names of nineteen candidates. They are:

Mayor: W. B. Cady and B. H. Gordon, Democrats; A. J. Lyle, Republican.

President of Council: John C. Goeller, Democrat.

Councilman-at-Large: Clarence Helvering and Frank A. Lynch, Democrats; C. O. Leist, Republican.

First Ward: J. D. Mason, Democrat; George Fissell, Republican.

Second Ward: Julius Helwagen, Democrat.

Third Ward: George Crites, Democrat.

Fourth Ward: William Reid and Boyd Horn, Democrats; Rev. O. L. Ferguson, Republican.

Solicitor: Joseph W. Adkins, Democrat.

Treasurer: Joseph Brink and John E. Himrod, Democrats; Charles Kirkpatrick, Republican.

Primary voters in the city will be given two ballots, one containing the names of candidates and the other the 1½ mill operating levy. The levy, which requires a 65 percent vote for passage, will be effective for two years. Revenue from the levy will be placed in the city's general fund for current operating expenses for the coming year.

After primary ballots have been prepared they must be approved by the chairmen of both the Democratic and Republican committees, and by the board of elections. Following their approval they will be sent to the printer.

Both Democratic Chairman Carl Leist and Republican Chairman Tom Renick said Tuesday that activity within their parties was quiet. Both said no meetings had been scheduled.

ICELAND ACTION DRAWS PRAISE FROM WILLKIE

NEW YORK, July 8—Terming the American occupation of Iceland a "necessary move," Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, today said that he hoped President Roosevelt's action would be followed by other moves "to further insure the delivery of our products to Britain."

Willkie said he advocated the Iceland action in a Chicago speech last June "as a necessary precaution for the protection of the United States." Possession of Iceland, he declared, will insure "our ability to protect shipments from the United States to the British Isles."

car and locomotive program last year, when steel was plentiful. However, rail men vigorously contend that Budd has done a good job of coordinating, deny there will be a car shortage this year.

Indirectly they admit there may be one next year, by saying that what happens depends on whether they can get deliveries of the thousands of new cars they have ordered. This year's freight requirements are estimated at 45,000,000 cars, next year at 48,000,000, and 1943, 50,000,000 cars.

Eastman and the President are old friends. In the early years of the New Deal, when railroad consolidation was much in the air, Roosevelt gave Eastman the job of working out a plan. He submitted a comprehensive program, but nothing came of it because of powerful rail and Wall Street opposition.

LOST DAYLIGHT SAVING? A few days ago the Federal Power Commission, backed by OPM Directors Knudsen and Hillman, called on the people in the Southeastern states to cut down their use of electricity so as to provide more power for urgent defense needs.

Arduous patriotic, the people of this section unquestionably will respond. But the incident illustrates the lack of coordination in the vast defense program.

For months, Defense chiefs have realized the danger of a serious power shortage. And for months there has been knocking around in the labyrinth of Defense offices a recommendation for a nationwide two-hour daylight saving system. Experts estimate that several hundre thousand kilowatts could be obtained by this simple measure. Britain and Germany have had it in operation continuously since the start of the war.

But in the good old "business-as-usual" U.S.A. the move is still only a "recommendation" in a memorandum gathering dust somewhere in a Defense pigeon-hole. Sooner or later a master mind will suddenly come to life and do something about it. Meanwhile, with the power shortage increasing, thousands of kilowatts are being consumed needlessly.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

It was a breathless day in Washington. The only breeze was kicked up by the little subway car running between the Senate Office Building and the Capitol. Passenger Hattie Caraway, Senator from Arkansas, clutched at her flying strands of hair. . . . United Service Organizations have had some big gifts, but none more touching than the savings brought in by one Harry Katz, who emptied on the desk 512 pennies, 44 nickels, eight dimes, and one quarter. . . . Displayed in the Department of Agriculture lobby are four practical pamphlets: "Cockroaches and Their Control", "Bedbugs: Causes and Cures", "House Ants", and "How to Control Fleas". . . . The President has on his desk a new leather briefcase, fastened securely at one end with steel padlock. . . . When a colleague asked Representative Mendel Rivers of South Carolina why he returned so suddenly from a visit to his district, he replied: "I came back to Washington for a few days' rest."

THREE CARS IN MINOR ACCIDENT IN UPTOWN AREA

Three cars were slightly damaged Monday about 5:30 p. m. in a traffic accident on Court Street near Franklin.

Those involved included Miss Lucille Neuding, 341 East Main Street; Lester Beavans, Columbus, and John Inglesby, 151 West Franklin Street.

Patrolman Alva Shasteen said Beavans struck the rear of Miss Neuding's car when she backed from the curb on Court Street into his lane of traffic. Collision with Miss Neuding's car caused a front tire on Beavans automobile to blow out and sent his car, out of control, into that of John Inglesby.
